Reds Renew Insistence For Council To Rule Japs

Veto Power Would Deprive MacArthur Of Decisive Voice, Byrnes Points Out

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer.

Soviet Russia, in a diplomatic somersault, is again insisting on a control council for Japan that would give her veto power and thus deprive Gen. Douglas MacArthur of the decisive voice at Tokyo.

Secretary of State Byrnes told reporters yesterday that Russia's position, which is a return to her original position, had been set forth in a communication just received from Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov.

In some quarters it was suspected that the Soviet maneuver was aimed at something beyond Japan, possibly at the American attitude with respect to the atomic bomb.

Not Opposed to Council

Secretary Byrnes, in discussing Molotov's communication, said that the United States was not opposed to an Allied control council for Japan. What is was opposed to, he said, was a council that might tie the hands of General MacArthur in carrying out surrender terms.

The Russians, he said, wanted a control council for Japan that would be substantially like the four-power council in Germany. In the latter country, all four powers must agree before action can be taken affecting the whole of Germany; any one power can exercise the veto.

Action Constantly Blocked

Secretary Byrnes said that action in Germany is constantly being blocked by this unanimity rule. The fact that one or the other of the powers can exercise a veto power, he said, has prevented the carrying out of many things that had been anticipated at the Big Three meeting at Potsdam.

Foreign Commissar Molotov first brought up the question of a four-power control council for Japan at the Foreign Ministers Conference in London on September 24. The Russian's proposal "appeared" to Secretary Byrnes to call for a council that would closely resemble the one in Germany.

On October 25 Secretary Byrnes issued a statement which said:

"Recent diplomatic exchanges indicate that the Soviet government is not now insisting on this position."

It thus appeared that Russia no longer was insisting on a control council for Japan like the one in Germany, and no longer was insisting that MacArthur be robbed of the decisive voice in case of differences among the powers.

However, it was not quite clear just what Russia did want. While negotiations were going on to break the deadlock, the representatives of 10 nations met here and formed the Far Eastern Advisory Commission. The Soviet Union, which had asked that the four-power control council come first, refused to name a representative to the Advisory Commission.

Expected Participation

President Truman said that, on the basis of a friendly and satisfactory reply he had received from a letter addressed to Marshal Stalin, he was confident that Russia would name a delegate to the Far Eastern Advisory Commission—and soon. Secretary Byrnes, it developed that same day, was not so optimistic.

The United States Government made a proposal to the Soviet Government and this was transmitted through Ambassador W. Averell Harriman. The reply from Foreign Commissar Molotov, which Secretary Byrnes disclosed yesterday, meant that the controversy was right back where it started.

It meant that Russia, for reasons best known in the Kremlin, had retreated from its more moderate position announced by the State Department on October 25 and was asking for a control plan for Japan which the United States has made clear, over and over again, it will not accept.

Until they can be shown that they are wrong, a good many people are going to believe that the real issue is not Japan but the bomb.

Pearl Harbor Testimony Begins Today

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer.

Hearings into the disaster at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, will be opened today by the already embattled Joint Investigating Committee of Congress.

The stately, high-ceilinged caucus room in the Senate Office Building is hung with maps and charts so that the first witnesses can lay the scene where the Nation suffered its greatest single military debacle.

Rear Admiral T. B. Inglis, chief of the Office of Naval Intelligence, and Col. Bernard Thielen of the War Department's general staff, will be the first witnesses.

Neither at Pearl Harbor

Neither was at Pearl Harbor on the day the Japs launched their sneak attack upon America's outer line of defense. Their testimony is expected to lay the groundwork in a review of what was happening in official circles during the tense period preceding the attack.

On the eve of the hearings, the House once more rang with charges and counter-charges by members of the committee from both parties.

Representative Frank B. Keefe (R., Wis.), touched off the latest of a series of partisan debates in Congress by asserting that some peo-

Jury Indicts 1, Frees Other in Wave Assault

A District bellhop, originally accused of raping three Waves, was indicted yesterday by the Montgomery grand jury for assault with intent to rape one of the women.

His bellhop companion at the time of the alleged attack, accused of raping one of the girls, was not indicted. Both youths have been free on $750 bond.

A bench warrant was issued for Robert Shackelford, 22, of 1226 17th st. nw., and he will be arraigned in Circuit Court at a later date. Freed by the negative action of the jury was Allen Hughett, jr., 18, of the same address.

The two youths were accused of picking the girls up in Arlington and going to the old Gold Mine near MacArthur blvd. in Montgomery County September 25. There, the Waves said, Hughett raped one girl and Shackelford raped three. A third youth on the trip was not involved. The jury indicted Shackelford for rape of the Wave companion of the third youth, but failed to indict for rape of the other two girls.

Assault with intent to rape carries a possible death penalty in Maryland. Early this month, in releasing the men on bond, Judge Stedman Prescott said, under Maryland law a woman must "fight to the last ditch" to protect her honor in order to provide a case of rape.

Limb Firms Indicted for Price Fixing

Grand Jury Charges 75 Per Cent of U. S. Industry Tried to Balk Improvements

A Federal grand jury here yesterday accused more than 75 per cent of the Nation's artificial limb industry of conspiring to fix high prices and to block improvements in the limb devices.

An indictment charging violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act named the Association of Limb Manufacturers of America, 45 member corporations, including one Washington, D. C., firm and 35 individuals.

Firm Denies Violation

The local firm is that of J. E. Hanger, Inc., 221 G st. nw., which issued a statement last night denying any conscious violation of the law.

The indicement said that 75 per cent of the total volume of limb business in the Nation was done by the manufacturers named, and about 90 per cent of the parts business was done by 10 supply dealers named.

In announcing the return of the true bill, Attorney General Tom C. Clark said the effect of the alleged conspiracy was to:

1. Force war veteran amputees purchasing limbs from manufacturers to pay high and noncompetitive prices.

2. Force the United States Veterans' Administration, as well as State agencies, to pay noncompetitive prices for the limbs.

3. Prevent further charitable institutions from making artificial limbs for indigent amputees free of charge.

4. Impede and discourage development of the quality and comfort of the limbs.

Clark Assails Prices

Clark said the latter effect resulted from the destruction of price competition. He added that the defendants also had closed the market to artisans capable of improving the limbs by refusing them access to separate limb parts already known to be satisfactory.

(The Washington Post, in an exclusive article by Sam Stavisky, veterans editor, revealed last September 16 that Justice Department investigation of these charges was underway.)

Chairman Augustine B. Kelley (D., Pa.) of the House Subcommitton Aid to the Physically Handicapped, declared yesterday he was pleased with the Justice Department's "energetic pursuit" of the investigation, which he said his group had recommended after extensive hearings on the subject of artificial limbs.

"By the hearings we have been led to believe that the artificial limb industry is not in good order and needs to do some house-cleaning," Kelley said.

Will Set Up Code

The Federal Trade Commission has scheduled a Chicago meeting for the first week in December with the entire membership of the limb industry in order to set up a code of fair trade practices, Kelley said.

Among the acts alleged by the grand jury were that the defendants agreed to fix minimum prices for artificial limbs sold to the general public and State agencies; to include identical and noncompetitive prices in bids submitted to the Veterans' Administration for limb orders, and to subject limbs they sold to a uniform guarantee of one year only.

They also agreed that suppliers of parts for assembly of the limbs would refuse to sell them to any Government agency or charitable institution which supplied them to amputees free of charge.

The local firm, J. E. Hanger, Inc., issued a statement following the release of the indictment that it had "nothing to hide." "The officers of J. E. Hanger, Inc., here and elsewhere are not conscious of having violated the antitrust laws or any other laws so far as that is concerned. Since we have not as yet been informed of the contents of the indictment, we can make no statement on it."

It added that the firm was established as a family business in 1861 and years ago "divested itself of any financial interest of control over many of the units of the Hanger organization, both here and abroad. The entire interests of efforts of organization have been devoted to producing the best in artificial limbs at a fair price."

Los Angeles Democrats Give Roosevelt Post

Los Angeles, Nov. 14 (AP).—James Roosevelt, eldest son of the late President, will head the Los Angeles County Democratic Central Committee's subcommittee on special veterans affairs.

Rescue Hopes Wane for Four In Plane Crash

Hope waned last night for the rescue of four Naval officers lost in a plane crash in the Potomac River Monday night as the Navy identified the missing men as personnel assigned to Washington operations.

The missing are:

1. Lieut. Comdr. Fred H. Covington, 32, of 2618 31st st. nw., son of Dr. and Mrs. James Covington of 201 Camden rd., Wadesboro, N. C.

2. Lieut. Comdr. Frederick B. Hall, 35, of 1320 31st st. nw. His home address was given as 5295 Waterman ave., St. Louis, Mo.

3. Lieut. Comdr. David Leavitt, 48, of 1320 31st st. nw.

4. Lieut. (j. g.) Stephen Dechsman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Dechsman of Gneiss, N. C.

Identification Erroneous

The Navy earlier was unable to supply the full name of Lieutenant Dechsman. He had been identified as Lieutenant Becksamier.

Commander Covington, the plane's pilot, was serving as a naval air aide at the White House, it was learned. He entered the Navy in July, 1939, as an aviation cadet and in March, 1940, was commissioned an ensign.

An employe of the Bureau of Aeronautics, Commander Hall was graduated from Yale University and later operated a boys' school at Tucson, Ariz. He served at one time as secretary to Mrs. William A. Woodin, widow of the former Secretary of the Treasury.

Leavitt, also an employe of the Bureau of Aeronautics, was graduated from the Washington University of St. Louis and the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris. He was described as an "artist and mural painter in civilian life."

Lieutenant Dechsman was attached to the photographic intelligence corps of the Navy Yard here, it was said. His wife, Mrs. Lor-

Eisenhower's Advice Sought On UNRRA

House Group Invites General to Give Views On Need of Relief

Before acting on further funds for UNRRA, the House Foreign Affairs Committee will seek advice and first-hand information on European conditions from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Chairman Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.) interrupted sharp questioning of Assistant Secretary of State Will Clayton by several members of the committee yesterday to say perhaps General Eisenhower could supply some of the answers. He later said the Army leader, now in this country, had been invited to testify and probably would appear tomorrow.

His announcement followed by Representative Robert B. Chiperfield (R., Ill.) that UNRRA had "exceeded authority granted it by Congress," particularly in going ahead with a $50 million dollar assistance program in Italy—a former enemy nation—and in planning to spend 250 million dollars in White Russia and the Ukraine.

Congress Authorized Change

UNRRA, seeking another appropriation of $1,350,000,000 with which to complete its relief work in war-devastated countries, was at first limited to activities in enemy-invaded countries. Congress later authorized a special program of 50 million dollars in Italy—at the request of military authorities—and UNRRA's central committee subsequently voted to increase the program.

Chiperfield said he was basing

Indonesians Slow Attack In Soerabaja

British Advances Limited as Fighting Enters Fifth Day; Cabinet Assembles

Batavia, Java, Nov. 14 (AP).—Determined Indonesian troops, using artillery and frequently counter-attacking, clung firmly to fortified positions along the east-west railway in Soerabaja today and limited British Indian forces to scant gains in the fifth day of bloody fighting.

The British continued bombing some key Indonesian positions, but declared they were using "only minimum force" against the Indonesians, entrenched in concrete pillboxes and air raid shelters built before the war.

An official statement said the British command was giving every opportunity to the "extremists to stop the useless bloodshed of their own people" and added that the British "still hoped" to occupy the big Java naval base without repeating last Saturday's heavy sea and air bombardment.

Seek End of Fighting

Meanwhile, in Batavia the new 36-year-old Premier of the unrecognized Indonesian Republic, Sutan Sjahrir, was assembling his cabinet to try to stop the fighting in Soerabaja and restore order throughout Java.

Action was delayed pending the arrival of two cabinet members from troubled East Java. Sjahrir already has indicated he would fly to Soerabaja to seek peace.

Minister of Information Amir Sjarifuddin said he was confident the Indonesian government could restore order if it received cooperative support from the British.

British Maj. Gen. D. C. Hawthorn, at his headquarters in Batavia, bluntly accused the commander of the Japanese Sixteentth Army and his chief of staff of having deliberately handed over arms to "unruly elements" in Java.

Hawthorn administed a verbal lashing to the two Japanese officers, Lieut. Gen. Yluchiro Nagano and Maj. Gen. Moichiro Yamamoto, at a formal surrender ceremony held a full six weeks after the arrival of British troops.

Face Violation Charge

The two generals and another staff officer of the Sixteenth Army, Maj. Gen. Junji Nakamura, later were placed aboard a plane which took off for Singapore, where they will answer charges of violating the Allied surrender terms.

Outlining plans of Sjahrir's cabinet to deal with the Indonesian extremists, Sjarifuddin said the new government would make it illegal for any citizen to carry arms except authorized members of the police force. Sjarifuddin added that all civilians in Soerabaja would be ordered to hand over their weapons to the Indonesian peace preservation corps—TKR—which he plans to reorganize and discipline.

In a formal statement of his policies, Sjahrir said measures would be taken at once to make the "republic" thoroughly democratic.

He said he would call general elections soon "in order that freely elected representatives of the people may take their rightful part in shaping governmental policy and deciding the destiny of the country."

He also declared that no member of the new government would be tainted by collaboration with the Japanese during the occupation.

House Delays Atomic Bomb Control Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Administration's May-Johnson bill for domestic control of atomic energy will be held up indefinitely in the House and possibly combined later on with legislation for international controls.

This was reliably indicated last night as the President entered night sessions with British Prime Minister Attlee and Canadian Premier Mackenzie King on three-power atomic bomb policies.

Awaits Outcome of Parley

The House leadership decided to hold up the May-Johnson bill indefinitely. This does not necessarily mean that the bill is dead. What finally is done about it will await (1) the outcome of the three-Nation atomic bomb talks and (2) the trend of the Senate's broad scale inquiry into international as well as domestic aspects of the problem.

In one well-informed Administration quarter it was said President Truman has changed his mind about the "rush" nature of legislation for domestic controls and all pressure to push it through the House has been removed.

The Anglo-American-Canadian discussions meanwhile entered the concluding phase, with leaders of the three nations for the first time conferring twice the same day. For two hours, Truman, Attlee and Mackenzie King conferred yesterday afternoon at the White House and then went into night session at 10 p. m.

White House Secretary William D. Hassett said another meeting of the three will be held at 10 a. m. today. A joint communique stating the area of agreement on atomic bomb policies will be issued at the conclusion of the talks, possibly today or tomorrow.

Attlee has proposed that the atomic secret be placed in an international pool, with participation

Eisenhower To Be Named Chief of Staff

Marshall Resigning; McNarney to Head U. S. Army in Germany

By Drew Pearson

President Truman this week will announce the resignation of Gen. George C. Marshall as Chief of Staff and the appointment of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to succeed him.

Eisenhower's appointment will be effective Monday, November 19. General Marshall, who is now past the retirement age, will go to his home near Leesburg, Va., retiring from the Army altogether. A graduate of Virginia Military Institute, he is one of the few non-West Pointers to serve as Chief of Staff.

Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, former deputy chief of staff, is expected to succeed Eisenhower as commander of the American Army in Germany. McNarney, a native of Emporium, Pa. (Marshall came from Uniontown, Pa.), was graduated from West Point in the same 1915 class with Eisenhower, though he is three years younger. The Texas-born, Kansas-raised Eisenhower is 55.

Gen. Lucius Clay will return to Germany to continue in charge of the civil administration of Germany.

Eisenhower is expected to institute a considerable shakeup of the general staff in Washington. Most of the older men who surrounded General Marshall will be transferred or retired, and Eisenhower will bring in some of the younger men who served with him in Europe.

Tel Aviv Mob Stones Police, Sets Torch To Buildings

8 Reported Wounded In Strike Clash Protesting New Palestine Proposal

Jerusalem, Nov. 14 (AP).—Jewish crowds set fire to government buildings and stoned police at Tel Aviv, and advices tonight declared British troops had fired on the rioters.

(Reuters said eight persons were wounded when the troops opened fire.)

The street fighting at Tel Aviv broke out during a 12-hour general strike called in protest against new British proposals to settle the Palestine problem, and more than 30 persons were reported injured. Twelve persons were hurt when youths stoned buses and taxis in Jerusalem.

Reports from Tel Aviv said troops of the Sixth Airborne Division fired at the legs of demonstrators after giving orders to "disperse immediately or we open fire."

Hurl Torches Into Building

A surging crowd of youths set fire to the British district office, breaking windows to hurl torches inside, the advices said, and also attacked the income tax office. Two Jewish police officers were reported hurt by flying stones.

The troops were said to have erected huge posters, in the English, Arabic and Hebrew languages, ordering demonstrators to go home or be shot. Searchlights were directed on the posters, and the crowds dispersed by 10 p. m.

No official statement was expected before tomorrow.

(A Reuters dispatch said one of the buildings set afire housed the income tax and light industries office. Explosions occurred inside, it added.)

Transit Workers Stoned

In Jerusalem, several hundred youths threw stones at transport workers who ignored the strike call, injuring several Jewish taxi drivers, five Arab taxi drivers, and four bus passengers.

Signs emblazoned "down with Attlee," and "down with Bevin" were hoisted at a huge mass meeting in Tel Aviv.

Thousands attended a mass meeting in Jerusalem, including 400 Hebrew University students. Another demonstration was held at Haifa.

At the Jerusalem meeting one speaker, Dr. Sneh-Kleinbaum, a member of the Jewish Agency executive committee, declared:

"Palestine is not an Arab country. Palestine is not a British country. Palestine is not an Anglo-American country, but a Jewish country, and it will be built up by all ways and means."

Except for the stoning incidents, Jerusalem remained quiet and the Jewish public appeared anxious to maintain discipline.

A secret radio station calling itself "the Voice of Israel" broadcast appeals for "a continuation of the Zionist struggle" and for "further refugee immigration and land settlement."

All Jewish Places Closed

All Jewish shops, restaurants, work shops and factories were closed, and Jewish-operated buses and taxis stopped. Essential workers were asked to stay on their jobs in military camps, hospitals, communications offices, and at Tel Aviv Harbor, where the first cargo ship to arrive there since 1940 was being unloaded.

The Jewish and Arab press alike protested strongly British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's policy statement yesterday, in which he announced a joint British-American committee would make recommendations concerning Jewish problems.

In Cairo, Pan-Arab League delegates held a special session to consider the league's course. Jamiel Mardam Bey, league president, said the Bevin declaration concerns "an extremely serious question in which all the Arab world is interested."

In Jerusalem, the Hebrew revisionist paper Hamashkif declared: "Even if this statement should be indorsed by the United States, and even if the whole world should be against us—we will not

Kodiak Out of Bounds Irks Girls

By George Connery
Post Staff Writer.

Kodiak, Alaska, Nov. 14.—The 125 girl employes of Kodiak Naval Base, mostly civil service workers, are ready to start the war all over again because of an order making their housing area "out of bounds" to all servicemen between 11 p. m. and 8 a. m.

In Alaska, out of bounds on a residence means just one thing and the girls are going to fight it out with Capt. R. R. Lyons on that issue. The order was signed by the executive officer of the base, of which Lyons is commander.

"We're trying to get along with the Navy and carry out all instructions in good faith, but this is too much," a spokesman for the girls said. "When Kodiak had a bad red-light district it was marked out of bounds. Now our residences get the same treatment. You can't miss the implication, and we don't have to stand for that."

The order, dated November 2, said:

"Subject: Defense Housing Project—Out of Bounds.

"1. Effective this date, that area of the naval operating base known as the Defense Housing Project is hereby placed out of bounds to all military and naval personnel between the hours of 2300 and 0800 daily. On Saturday and holidays, or when special organized social functions are taking place, the out-of-bounds hours will be 0030 (12:30 a. m.) to 0800.

"These restrictions do not apply to personnel whose duties specifically require them to be present in the Defense Housing Area."

It was signed by Comdr. W. F. Dawson, acting for Lyons.

One of the girls who has spent more than two years in this 98-per-cent-male base, put their case this way:

"There were a few incidents here a few months ago, but we believe that situation has been corrected. Our characters were carefully investigated before we came up here, and we're leading the same kind of decent lives we did in the States. This order says quite plainly that we're something else."

Apparently the Navy intends to enforce the ruling. A week ago the driver of a truck taking a group of the girls to a Red Cross dance was stopped by a guard. He was hauled before the duty officer, who eventually let him go on.

The girls said they wouldn't carry their objections to Lyons, "because we probably couldn't get in to see him anyway," but would make a direct appeal to Navy Secretary Forrestal.

They pointed out that enforcement of the ruling makes it impossible or at least difficult for them to have dates. If they see a late show, their male friends can't get them home before the deadline. But it's the tone of the order, rather than its effect, that has them roaring mad.

Reds Thrown Back In Mongolia Battle

Communists Breach Two Chiang Towns In Savage Fighting

Chungking, Nov. 14 (AP).—Crack Communist troops were thrown back in savage fighting as they hurled heavy attacks at two major Nationalist strongholds in Inner Mongolia, an official dispatch said today.

The battles still swirled about the railway terminal of Paotow and long-besieged Kweisui, capital of Suiyuan Province 80 miles to the east, where the Communists threw in 10,000 reinforcements, the dispatch added.

The attack on Paotow, western terminal of the now-severed Peiping-Suiyuan Railroad, opened at 3 a. m. yesterday and 3000 Communist troops forced the western gate, this account claimed. Eleven hours later they were expelled.

General Ho Lung, famed Communist commander, meanwhile was reported to have attacked Kweisui with five columns 10,000 strong.

The dispatch said the attackers inflicted "considerable casualties on civilians" in the southwestern section of the city before most of them were wiped out.

Situation Obscure

The situation remained obscure on the southern border of Manchuria, southeast of this battle zone, where neutral advices had reported Nationalist troops had captured the Communist fortress city of Shanhaikwan Linyu.

A Communist spokesman was unable to confirm Shanhaikwan's fall but said at last reports government troops were but two-thirds of a mile from the city.

He declared the government had landed four armies at the U. S. Marine-occupied port of Chinwangtao for the sole purpose of seizing Shanhaikwan and pushing on into Manchuria.

Thousands of United States-trained and equipped Nationalist troops began landing meanwhile at Tsingtao, Shantung Province port 275 miles south of Chinwangtao.

The Communists have dominated this startegic coastal province since the end of the war, but unofficial reports recently indicated they were pulling out by sea for Manchuria. American marines previously had secured Tsingtao.

A foreign office spokesman, meanwhile, made the first official Chungking admission that China was having difficulty in negotiating with Russia for the entry into Manchuria.

Negotiations Continuing

"Negotiations are continuing but so far we have not overcome all the difficulties," he said.

Minister of Information K. C. Wu denied a report that Russia had granted Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek permission to fly 1500 troops to Changchun, Manchuria's capital.

A government spokesman also denied a Communist charge that American lend-lease material still was being sent into China for use in the campaign against Chinese Reds.

He pointed out that America had canceled lend-lease to China and said that U. S. equipment now being distributed to Chinese forces came from stockpiles accumulated during the war.

Most foreign and Chinese quarters here took a dim view of the forthcoming "peace conference" of the Political Consultative Council which is expected to meet November 20.

Guard Doubled

Police Seek Riot Leaders In Honolulu

Honolulu, Nov. 14 (AP).—Police were doubled tonight in the Damon Housing district and detectives swarmed through the dim-lit area looking for hoodlums suspected of provoking Monday night's riot between 1500 Navy men and civilians.

Police Chief W. A. Gabrielson announced that the redoubled police force would track down reports of trouble-making by civilian hoodlums.

Navy participants in the fighting had said they charged into the district looking for "local toughies" who had made repeated attacks on sailors.

All was calm last night after the Shore Patrol called in police to help them break up crowds of sailors congregating at the gates of the station. The Shore Patrol said it had asked for police help in case the sailors tried to leave the station.

Lieut. R. M. Singer, air station public information officer, charged that more than 30 of the station's personnel had been beaten by Damon civilians in the last two months without the police making an arrest.

No one was injured seriously in the clashes, in which Detective Captain Eugene Kennedy said the sailors charged with knives, clubs and rocks.

Tthe Honolulu Star-Bulletin said in an editorial that unless the military and police could clean up the trouble, the only alternative would be to put Honolulu out of bounds for all servicemen.

The newspaper said fights between servicemen and civilians had been going on for a long time "and there are two sides to it. The provocation is not all from civilians."

Plea for Honest Presentation

Representative John W. Murphy (D., Pa.), another member of the committee, too kthe floor to warn against trying the case in the newspapers and to ask that the committee be given a chance to present a full, frank, free and honest story to the American people.

Murphy read into the record warnings sent to the Pearl Horbor commanders by the Army and Navy on November 27 concerning the state of affairs with Japan.

He cited the warnings to refute statements made previously by Representatives Keefe and Bertrand W. Gearhart (R., Calif.) that Pearl Harbor might not have happened had the Army and Navy alerted their forces as well as J. Edgar Hoover had warned the FBI igents in Hawaii.

The Navy message dispatched on November 27 read: "This is to be considered a war warning," Murphy said, and challenged:

"Anything Weasel-Worded"

"Is there anything weasel-worded about that?"

The Army on the same date sent a message to Pearl Harbor:

"Negotiations with the Japanese appear to be terminated to all practical purposes with only the barest possibility that the Japanese government might come back and offer to continue. Japanese future action unpredictable but hostile action possible at any moment."

Is it fair to say that no message to Pearl Harbor was sent by the Army or Navy, Murphy asked.

Gearhart replied:

"If the gentleman from Pennsylvania wants to be fair he will admit that there was nothing directive in any one of these messages telling either Admiral Kimmel or General Short what to do under these strange circumstances."

Homecoming GI To Get Sad News Of Father's Death

It will be a sad homecoming for Corpl. Kenneth M. Cox of Lower Marlboro, Md., when he arrives in New York Friday. His father, M. B. Cox, 49, died last Friday, a week before his son's return to this country.

Corporal Cox has been in the China-Burma theater for almost 15 months. He sailed from Calcutta October 20. His father, a merchant in Lower Marlboro, who had been seriously ill for several months, lokoed forward to his son's arrival, checking the date of the arrival of the vessel, the troopship General Patrick, with Army officials until the day before his death.

Members of the family stated that the son has not yet been informed of his father's death.

Md. Library Drive Sets $50,000 Goal

n John S. White, speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates, has been appointed chairman of the campaign to raise funds for a Memorial Library system in Prince Georges County, it kas announced yesterday.

Mrs. J. Enos Ray, chairman of the planning committee will be conducted to raise $50,000 to provide housing and equipment for the County Memorial Library system, which will honor the service men and women of the county.

The county commissioners will be asked to provide funds, in accordance with legislation passed at the 1945 session of the Maryland legislature, to cover operating expenses of the proposed library.

A second full day of intensive search by some 800 military and civilian personnel yesterday proved fruitless. Naval authorities said the search, conducted over a radius of about 10 miles from the spot in the Potomac River near Indianhead, Md., where the plane was forced down, would not be abandoned, however. Boats were scheduled to survey the river again last night, but further combing of the nearby woods was held useless.

Planes Keep Vigil

Several searching parties combed the woodlands around Indianhead yesterday. One was composed of some 150 Navy and civilian personnel of the powder factory, another was made up 200 Marines from Quantico, Va., and others were composed of civilian volunteers.

Fifteen planes from the Naval Air Station at Anacostia maintained a constant vigil over the Potomac area in which the plane crashed. At least a dozen small boats "searched up and down the river, going into all inlets and shallow waters."

Two persons survived the crash when they parachuted into the waters of the Potomac. They were Lieut. (J.g.) Caroline Bohannon of 1739 N st. nw., and Lieut. Comdr. Henry Meers of 6450 Brooks lane, nw. The plaen crashed after it had run out of fuel.

The controversial May-Johnson bill for drastic domestic controls, immediate passage of which was originally urged by President Truman, meanwhile remained stationary on the House calendar. Although the Military Committee cleared it under pressure more than a week ago, the House leadership yesterday significantly omitted the measure from a list of "must" bills the Administration is anxious to enact before the Christmas holiday recess.

Russian Press Announces Cosmic Energy Discoveries

Moscow, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Moscow newspapers displayed prominently today an announcement by the Russian Academy of Sciences that its members, studying cosmic rays at a remote laboratory in the Caucasus Mountains, had made discoveries which might aid greatly in Soviet development of atomic power.

It was disclosed that the study of cosmic rays and cosmic showers, conducted by Russian expeditions since 1936, was intensified last August—the month in which the atom bomb was dropped on Japan.

In August, the academy statement said, 50 tons of scientific equipment was delivered to the cosmic ray research laboratory at Alagez, 10,660 feet up in the Armenian Caucasus Mountains.

A 3-ton magnet was constructed by Academician Peter Kapitza.

Energy Is Measured

The Armenian academician Alikhanyan said that the strong magnetic field enabled the scientists at Alagez to separate the component parts of cosmic rays and measure their energy.

Alikhanyan added that a third component, possessing special properties, was discovered in addition to the known components of comic days, mestotrons and electrons. The third component, he said, was broken up into charged particles similar to protons.

Observing the particles through special apparatus, the academy statement said, the academicians were able to make the first photographs of them.

It appeared, according to the statement, that under the impact of cosmic rays on a thin zinc plate, a large number of heavy particles or protons were created.

At the same time, it was said, types of cosmic showers were discovered.

Follows Molotov Statement

Considerable importance was attached in foreign quarters to today's announcement. It came one week after the statement by Foreign Commissar Molotov that Russia would have atomic energy "and many other things," and it apparently implied that Russia was not lagging far behind the western Allies in development of the atomic bomb. Also it was made during the Washington talks between President Truman and Prime Ministers Attlee and MacKenzie King.

It was suggested that the statement tended to strengthen the importance of Molotov's assertion and at the same time to raise the confidence of the ordinary Russian in the potentialities of Soviet as compared to Anglo-American-Canadian science.

his objection solely on legal aspects, and not on whether the Italian and Soviet areas should be assisted.

Clayton said Congress has the right to deny the agency funds but that "morally we are bound to try and finish a program which we started." He urged "the promptest possible action" on President Truman's request that more funds be voted.

Too Late to Use Red Cross

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (R., Mass.) broke in to say she thought the Red Cross ought to do all the relief work. Clayton said that might have been a good idea if it had been done from the start "but it would be a grave mistake to change now."

Chairman Bloom agreed with Clayton, declaring that before another organization could get started "all the people it wanted to help would be dead."

Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson, who helped get UNRRA legislation under way in the form wanted by the State Department, defended the agency's work in Italy and said no new obligation had been assumed there.

Chiperfield also reported existence of a "confidential letter" in which he said Russia had "refused to invite" UNRRA to aid in the care of displaced persons in the Russian-occupied zone of Germany.

The Navy announced yesterday assignment of Rear Admiral Howard F. Kingman to replace Admiral William F. Halsey, jr., as commander of the famed Third Fleet.

At the same time, Vice Admiral Daniel E. Harbey, commander of amphibious forces of the Seventh Fleet, was named to command the Seventh Fleet. He succeeds Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid.

Admiral Halsey has applied for retirement from the Navy. Kingman has been commander of battle division 9 of the Pacific Fleet.

Admiral Kinkaid was given command of the western sea frontier with headquarters at San Francisco, Calif., succeeding Admiral Royall E. Ingersoll for whom a new assignment has not been announced.

Admiral Raymond A. Spruance, commander of the Fifth Fleet, was named deputy commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet and deputy commander in chief of Pacific Ocean areas, succeeding Vice Admiral John H. Newton, who was ordered home to await further orders.

Jap Baroness In Political Race for Diet

Tokyo, Nov. 14 (INS).—Baroness Shizue Shimoto, the first woman ever to enter a political race in Japan, nanounced today that she will be a candidate for the House of Representatives in the coming general elections.

She will run for office on the Social Democratic ticket. The Baroness can be a candidate only under her private life name of Mrs. Kanjo Kato and she may team up with her husband in seeking office.

The Baroness was a close associate of Margaret Sanger of birth control fame, and she attempted to spread the Sanger doctrine in Japan when she returned from a United States lecture tour in 1936.

She has recently been released from jail after having been arrested with 2600 other popular front members on charges of promulgating "dangerous thought."

Japs Propose Barter

Tokyo, Nov. 14 (AP).—Beaten Japan, facing a cold and hungry winter, and a war reparations bill, today proposed a system of barter with the United States and other countries.

Primary purpose of the plan, requested by Minister of Agriculture Sanukro Ogasawara, would be to obtain staple foods immediately and set up a long range program for reviving the nation's wobbly economy.

In an apparent move to help meet the expected reparations bill the government decided to encourage private production of gold in the home islands. This development also was reported by Klodo, which said the government had obtained Allied permission to accederate production of the precious metal. Only 155 gold mines now are working, with 333 idle, because of the labor shortage.

Japs Beheaded Five U. S. Fliers Near Makassar

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 14 (AP).—Allied investigators said today that natives had fuond the headless bodies of five American fliers, executed by the Japanese on Celebes Island near Makassar.

The bodies lay in unmarked graves in a Japanese execution burial ground.

The ankles of one body were bound tightly with black cord and the body was crouched forward as if in position for a beheader's sword. A blindfolded skull was found near the torso, which was clad in U. S. Army trousers. A medical examiner said the victim was beheaded by multiple sword blows.

Other human bones and skulls recovered from deep graves bore evidence of beheadings, the investigators said.

Allied authorities said the airmen were believed victims of Tokki Tai—the Japanese navy secret police—at headquarters at Makassar.

They said the victims were taken to the headquarters after capture and tortured before being killed.

Natives said the Japanese made gala celebrations of the executions.

2 Princesses Granted Right To Normal Life

London, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Princess Elizabeth, heiress presumptive to the British throne, and her sister, Princess Margaret, from now on are going to be permitted to live like normal girls, free to choose their own friends and come and go as they please.

A Buckingham Palace official revealed today that this decision had been made by King George VI and Queen Elizabeth as the result of the end of the war and the fact that their children are now growing up.

The princesses on Monday night visited the theater accompanied by only two young guards officers and two ladies in waiting and sat in the orchestra instead of the royal box.

The princesses, it was disclosed, plan to make many similar "free" outings, choosing their own escorts. On Monday night they were escorted by Lieut. Nigel Paget, of the Royal Horse Guards, 22-year-old son of Lord and Lady Victor Paget, and Lieut. C. Peterick, of the Life Guards, a son of Maj. George and Lady Jeane Petherick. The officers first met the princesses at a military function nine months ago and have met them since on numerous other occasions. They always attend dances given at Windsor Castle and frequently visit Buckingham Palace.

The palace official said there was no foundation for the rumor that a special quota of hand-picked officers were being kept as escorts for the princesses.

Canterbury Dean Goes to New York After D. C. Visit . .

The Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, dea nof Canterbury, England, who is in America for a series of addresses on American-Soviet friendship, returned to New York City last night after a flying visit to Washington.

He paid a social call on the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of the Washington Episcopal Diocese, and Mrs. Dun at their home on the Cathedral Close, and inspected the Cathedral on Mount St. Albans.

The dean was dinner guest of Joseph E. Davies, former Ambassador to Russia, here Tuesday night.

Stories of U. S. Spur Attacks On Italian Reds

Rome, Nov. 7 (By Mail) (U.P.).—Glowing descriptions of life in the United States as painted by former Italian war prisoners have sparked a series of attacks on the headquarters of Communist and other leftist organizations throughout southeastern Italy.

The trouble started when prisoners back from Russia began talking things over with those returned from the United States. The outcome of the comparison was heavily in favor of the United States. Then followed glowing rough and tumble clashes with the leftists until attacking leftists and their headquarters developed into one of the most popular outdoor sports in southeastern Italy.

At the same time, Italian girls, pining for the wartime association with the Americans, most of whom have departed, also began joining in the attacks.

Recently in a little town near Bari a mob including several hundred former prisoners wrecked Communist headquarters and chased the party personnel from town. Leading the column were Italian girls carrying American flags.

The Leftists claims all the outbreaks thus far have been engineered by Fascists, although much of the responsibility for the trouble lies with the leftists themselves.

The leftists, rather tactlessly according to most observers, went out of their way to personally greet trainloads of prisoners returning from Russia. They carried with them red flags and pro-Russian signs. But the repatriates frequently stormed from the trains in anger, tearing down the flags and often beating their would-be greeters.

Dachau Camp Atrocity Trial Begins Today

Frankfurt, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Forty Germans, headed by two doctors who experimented with humans, go on trial before an eight-man Allied military court at Dachau tomorrow for atrocities committed at the notorious Dachau concentration camp.

The Germans were charged with responsibility for the deaths by starvation and torture of some 30,000 prisoners, a number of whom died in medical experiments in malarial blood poisoning, salt water diets and immersion in ice water.

Heading the defendants was Dr. Kaus Karl Schilling, charged with killink an estimated 1100 to 3000 persons in malarial experiments. Another defendant, Dr. Fritz Hintermayer, was charged with experiments which caused the deaths of 90 0and drove more than 1000 insane.

Bombay, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Indian Moslem circles reported today that they considered the United States too interested financially in Palestine to be capable of fair judgment in the Anglo-American investigation of conditions there.

FBI Kidnaping Expert Heads Search for 2 Missing Children

San Francisco, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—E. J. Connelly, assistant director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation who solved the 1935 George Weyerhaeuser kidnaping, announced tonight that the FBI was investigating the disappearances of 3-year-old Dickie tum Suden and boby-soxer Thora Chamberlain, 15.

The tum Suden child, heir to a gold-mining fortune, has been missing from the front yard of the summer home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph tum Suden, near the Sierra County seat of Downieville, Calif., 14 days ago.

Thora Chamberlain, San Jose, Calif., high school girl, disappeared on her way to a football game November 2. She was last seen getting into the automobile of a man described as having "a ruddy face and a prominent nose."

Ransom Note Hinted

Connelly did not indicate that ransom notes had been received by either family although it was rumored that ransom had been demanded in the Chamberlain case.

Sheriff William J. Emig of Santa Clara County reported that on two occasions a mysterious caller attempted to contact the Chamberlain home by telephone but hung up each time.

Chamberlain has maintained a vigil for a promised telephone call by a mysterious "friend" since November 6.

On that date the family received a telegram signed "A Friend, Campbell High School, Class of 1944," from Long Beach, Calif., promising to provide information.

The school girl was seen getting into a battered Plymouth sedan driven by a middle-aged stranger by her classmates.

Search for the tum Suden child was abandoned November 6 after 300 soldiers and civilian mountain trackers, assisted by trail-following dogs, had painstakingly covered a 25-square-mile area without finding a trace of the missing boy.

Three Nations Ask War Court To Try Krupp

Nuernberg, Germany, Nov. 14 (AP). The American, French and Russian prosecutors today asked the International War Crimes Tribunal to substitute Alfried Krupp for his ailing father as a defendant and to delay the trial of top-flight Nazis for 12 days until December 2.

Countering, the Krupp family attorney demanded that the indictment against "an old, dying man" be dismissed and that none be issued against his son.

The court deliberated for four hours, without announcing its decision. But it will hold another session tomorrow to hear Julius Streicher's attorney appeal for three or four more weeks of time and may announce all decisions shortly thereafter.

Proposals Made by U. S.

The substitution and delay proposals were made by United States Prosecutor Robert H. Jackson, supported by the French and Russian prosecutors.

The latter two had reversed their previous stand against the substitution after a medical commission reported the 75-year-old Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach was suffering from "senile degeneration of the brain tissues" and would never be able to stand trial.

Jackson asked the 12-day delay if the substitution was approved.

Both motions were vigorously opposed by bespectacled Dr. Theodor Kliefisch, attorney for the Krupps, who said he would need at least 30 days to prepare his case if the court decided to try the younger Krupp, now owner of the vast armament empire.

The British prosecutor, Sir Hartley Shawcross opposed, asking that the elder Krupp be tried in absentia.

Jackson made no attempt to conceal American chagrin that keeping a Krupp in the trials would entail a delay, but he added: "I do not see how we can justify placing our convenience or uninformed demands for haste ahead of doing this task thoroughly."

Torture of U. S. Fliers Charged To Yamashita

Manila, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—The Japanese in the Philippines burned captured American fliers alive, tortured them in spike-lined coffins, hanged them by the feet and ran wires through their bodoies, witnesses at the trial of Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita testified today.

Witnesses telling of the torture and massacre of 50 persons on March 26 of this year said that among them were three American fliers—Paul Mansella, Lawrence Fox and a man named Scott.

Teodoro Sanchez, a Filipino Quisling, testified that he saw five Filipinos of that group and one American flier forced to kneel over a hole for beheading by Jap sabers.

Those tortures were inflicted on the Island of Cebu. Lieut. Semeon J. Larkins of the 110th Graves Registration Company, testified that he found two American bodies in a foxhole on Cebu, the hands tied, the necks cut by asbers, and burned by gasoline.

A Chinese witness, Ho King Hun, testified that in November, 1944, at Fort Santiago, in Manila, he saw the Japanese torture American fliers by various methods. Among them was covering their bodies with gasoline and then setting them afire; stringing them up by their feet and running wires through the bodies, and placing them in spike-filled coffins with lighted candles underneath.

Senator's Plan

10% Pay Hike Urged for All In Industry

Senator Knowland (R., Calif.), today proposed a national wage formula involving an immediate grant of 10 per cent increases in hourly wages throughout American industry, plus additional wage boosts in the future linked to anticipated higher profits.

The program was submitted to Labor Secretary Schwellenbach, and was also discussed with reconversion chief John W. Snyder. In a letter to Schwellenbach, Knowland said he offered the formula in the hope that it would be helpful in "preventing a fatal delay" in reconversion.

No Government Intervention

Under Knowland's plan, the formula would be put into effect by direct collective bargaining agreements between labor and industry, without Government intervention. Wage rates would be adjusted once a year in negotiating conferences, which would also consider the expected monetary returns for the next 12 months and agree on the most equitable and economic division of them among labor, management, stockholders and consumers, the last-named in the form of lower prices.

In the present situation, the new California Senator suggested, an hourly rate increase of 10 per cent should be granted immediately except in those industries which cannot affor dit in the absence of price relief.

For the future, this basic or "firm" increase would be negotiated in collective bargaining. In addition, however, the plan called for an estimate of future profits in excess of the amount necessary for payment of the "firm" increase. The excess sum, after other expenses, would become a "leeway" for further increases in wages.

Production and Sales Level

In the automobile industry, for example, the "leeway" might amount to 20 per cent, the difference between the 10 per cent to be granted immediately and the 30 per cent now being demanded by the United Auto Workers Union.

"The goal of both management and labor during the year," the formula reads, "would be to keep the company's production and sales at such levels that the maximum of 'leeway' (30 per cent) could be paid instead of the minimum of the 'leeway' (in this hypothetical case, 10 per cent)."

The increases above the minimum would not be paid until they are earned, Knowland proposed. Re-estimates could be paid at suitable intervals, however, and a final settlement, based on actual earnings, made at the end of the year.

Knowland's formula was offered jointly by him and Blair Moody, Washington correspondent of the Detroit News, who had been working on a similar plan.

Immediate reaction of labor observers was that the formula had the merits, as well as the liabilities, of most profit-sharing plans, and that it might encounter opposition from organized labor which, although happy to share in profits, has hesitated to tie wage rates to earnings, lest labor be caught in any downswing.

OPA Head Doubts Price Decline Would Follow Removal

By Christine Sadler

Price Administrator Chester Bowles yesterday denied Congressional requests that OPA suspend retail price ceilings on chickens and turkeys. Representative Stephen Pace (D., Ga.), chairman of a House Agriculture Committee investigating poultry prices, said producer prices had failed below ceilings but other prices had stayed up.

He argued that suspension of the OPA pricing structure would result in a drop all along the line and thus consumers would benefit from the price decrease which poultry raisers have already had.

Bowles expressed doubt that retail ceilings would drop and said OPA's policy does not allow piecemeal removals of pricing. He outlined the agency's policy for ending price ceilings as follows:

Five Points In Policy

1. To remove ceilings when there is assurance that prices to consumers will not rise.

2. Not to remove at one level until all levels are ready for the action. That is, not at wholesale or retail until distributor, processor and producer levels are also "safe."

3. Not to let temporary bulges either above or below ceilings determine policy.

4. Not to remove ceilings in some areas until they can be removed generally.

5. Not to remove ceilings from some grades until all grades of the same product can similarly be freed.

Meantime, the House Small Business Committee continued its hearing into OPA pricing of new automobiles. No Congressmen showed up to make speeches, however, although it was "their day" and more than 300 had appeared on opening day.

Auto Dealers to Appear Today

Automobile dealers will be heard again today, ending the hearings, and OPA agreed yesterday to listen to their presentation before announcing its prices on reconverted cars.

Representative F. Edward Hebert (D., La.) later put a speech in the record accusing Bowles "of using pressure tactics" with Congress and "it's about time that the American people wake up and bowl Bowles out."

Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), similarly entering a speech, charged Bowles with trying to put price control "on a racketeering basis."

Other Congressmen, filing letters and telegrams from constituents, expressed their bitter opposition to OPA's cost-absorption policy which will prevent retail automobile dealers getting the same percentage mark-up on new cars as they received in prewar days.

Representative Henry D. Larcade (D., La.) introduced a bill to give OPA's pricing authority to some other agency.

Two Defend Bowles

Both Bowles and OPA, however, were strongly defended in floor speeches by Representative Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.), and Representative William Gallagher (D., Minn.).

"If OPA ceilings were removed, the price of sugar alone would go to $2 a pound," Gallagher said, while Sabath—asserting that "every industry is trying to get higher and higher" prices—declared:

"I don't know if anyone else could do as well as Bowles has done. I don't always agree with him, but he is trying to do an honest job. I believe we should cease attacking an honest man who is trying to do an honest job."

Keep Atomic Secret, Says Lindbergh

By International News Service

Charles A. Lindbergh was reported last night to have told a group of Midwest Republican Congressmen that the United States should keep the secret of the atomic bomb and all other military secrets.

Disclosure of the meeting was made by Representatives Buffett (Nebraska) and Vursell (Illinois), Republicans. They revealed that the meeting was held in the deepest secrecy at a Washington Hotel last Thursday.

Buffett and Vursell, who said they attended the conference, added that Lindbergh requested the secrecy.

It was recalled that Lindbergh, famed scientist and hero of the first nonstop flight to Paris, had performed wartime aerial experiments for the armed services in the Pacific.

Buffett said that other national figures might be invited to appear informally before the Republican congressional group to "give us some outside thought on the atomic bomb and similar matters."

Vursell said that "there was nothing sensational about Mr. Lindbergh's statements, although they were very interesting."

The fact that the "Flying Colonel" of prewar days had urged retention of the bomb and other military secrets was revealed by another Congressman who asked that he not be named.

Lindbergh also was reported to have urged that the United States maintain a superior air force and not depend entirely upon the United Nations organization to guarantee this country's security.

2800 U. S. Cafeteria Workers To Strike if Pay Demand Fails

Some 2800 employes of 54 cafeterias in Government buildings here will strike within a few weeks unless demands for a 30 per cent wage boost are met, a spokesman for the United Federal Workers Union (CIO) said last night.

Officials of Government Services, Inc., which operates the bulk of cafeterias in Federal buildings, said wage increases cannot be granted unless the OP A"gives us some price relief."

Caught in Squeeze

"We're caught in a squeeze between the OPA and the union," according to Dallas H. Smith, personnel director.

He admitted negotiations on a new contract have "reached an impasse," and contended the company already "is on the red" due to 3½ cents per hour increases granted workers in April.

Officials of Cafeteria Workers Local 471, UFWA, said management is "refusing to bargain at all unless it can get price relief from OPA." The 30 per cent wage hike sought would give the lowest paid workers 65 cents per hour, it was said.

Some "Take Home" Only $15.88

Workers are suffering from a loss in take-home pay resulting from a shift to a 40-hour week and some are making as little as $15.88 weekly after tax deductions, union officials said.

Oliver Palmer, business agent, said the union has requested Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach to conduct a strike vote among members.

"Strike action will only be taken as a last resort," he said.

Stalemate Unbroken

Negotiations leading to a settlement of the strike of AFL workers of the Greyhound Bus Co. have again reached a stalemate, it was stated yesterday.

After a day's session in Philadelphia Tuesday, both union representatives and U. S. labor conciliators returned to Washington yesterday with the announcement that they could report no progress. No announcement was made of resumptions of meetings.

Negotiators to Speed D. C. Transit Wage Talks

Negotiations in the Capital Transit Co. wage controversy with union employes will be speeded up beginning today, the negotiators promised yesterday after a two-hour session.

At the same time it became known that the company is now hiring more men than it is losing for the first time in months.

They will meet today at 2 p. m. at the Wardman Park Hotel. At that time, says the announcement, they "will go into continuous session from morning until night and will continue through Saturday and Sunday if necessary."

The company needs 650 operators to bring its total up to the 2500 it has jobs for now, it stated. Labor negotiators point out that each new operator hired brings down the hours of overtime the present men are working, and thus reduces their "take home" pay.

Virginian, 25, Held On Girl's Charges Of Rape, Robbery

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—Clovis B. Newton, 15, of Richmond, was ordered held for the February grand jury today after a hearing in Chesterfield County Trial Justice Court on charges of rape and robbery.

The charges against Newton were brought in connection with an alleged criminal attack and robbery of a young Colonial Heights woman working at Camp Lee. The alleged attack took place on Saturday night when, the young woman reported to Chesterfield police, she accepted a ride in an automobile from a man she believed to be a neighbor.

Police said she told them that instead of driving to her home, as she had expected, the driver of the automobile continued into Chesterfield County, where the alleged attack and robbery took place. The woman said her assailant, after attacking her, took all her money and a ring.

Bail for Newton was set at $5000, and in default of it he was returned to the Henrico Jail following the hearing this morning.

Research Value Cited At Textile Group Parley

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 14 (Spl.).—The importance of research and fabric engineering in the future of the textile industry was discussed by Dr. Lewis Larrick of the institute of Textile Technology, this city, at a dinner held last night in the Albemarle Hotel, in connection with the quarterly meeting of the Shenandoah Valley Textile Executives Association.

The association, formed last May, includes executives from the following mills: Virginia Woolen, Clearbrook Woolen, and Winchester Woolen companies, Winchester; Charlottesville Woolen Mill; Dunn Woolen Co. and Berkeley Woolen Mills, Martinsburg, W. Va.; and Dickey Woolen Co., Maryland.

Johns-Manville Starts Va. Plant Expansion

Jarratt, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—Start of a million-dollar expansion programe designed to increase the insulating board output of its Jarratt plant by approximately 30 per cent was announced today by Johns-Manville Corp.

L. J. Spangler, plant manager, said the expansion was undertaken to meet increasing demands for insulating materials used in housing and industry. The plans include construction of a new office building and enlargement of warehouse and manufacturing area by 75,000 square feet.

OPA and Industry Exhibits Accent Price Inequalities

Industry and OPA ran competing exhibits on Capitol Hill yesterday—the former prepared by the National Retail Dry Goods Association to show, it said, the agency's pricing inequality and the latter by the OPA Consumer Advisory Committee to illustrate the need to control inflation.

OPA denied an official tie-up with the consumer committee's display, and committee members asserted they were not "trying either to vie with or answer the charges being made downstairs." Both were in the Old House Office Building.

The NRDGA show was prepared at the request of the Smith Committee, which asked for illustrations of charges made before it recently and later sharply denounced by Price Administrator Chester Bowles.

Many congressmen dropped by to see this display, which will continue through tomorrow, and which undertakes show how old-line manufacturers who have their prices frozen are "priced out of business" while newcomers in the same field get much higher prices from OPA for shoddy and "different" brands.

Quality Goods Scarce

"Of course, quality merchandise is scarce in retail stores," one NRDGA representative remarked bitterly. "Look at these and you see why. Here's a good corduroy which the manufacturer could not make at OPA prices and on which he was refused any relief, and right beside it here is a corduroy of half weight and quality priced only one cent per yard lower. The lighter weight is made by a newcomer who had no records. The OPA gave him cost plus—but the regular manufacturer had to stop making the better stuff."

Men's shirts and shorts in the lower price ranges naturally are scarce "because look at the prices OPA tries to make the manufacturers use," while "here's a model made of bedspreading—by a newcomer — priced much higher than we could get for a better production."

Sateen is nonexistent for Americans, NRDGA spokesmen said, for thte same reason "and is now being shipped abroad because there is no price ceiling on exports of it." Good percale will be nonexistent, they said, until "manufacturers can make a reasonable profit on it so they can stay in business."

A woman's slip frozen at $18 per dozen at wholesale was displayed beside a flimsier model with netting on the bottom which nets the newcomer $75 per dozen.

Plastic, Electric Irons

An electric iron which "several manufacturers would be glad to make to retail for $3" was exhibited beside a plastic lightweight iron on which OPA allowed a new manufacturer a retail ceiling of $5. All OPA would allow the former manufacturers was $1.55 wholesale—"because they had made it prewar and their prices could not go up."

OPA did not question the NRDGA figures, but claimed the display was "not representative," to which the retailers replied:

"The stores declare they are and we can get a hundred more to prove it."

OPA admitted the lightweight iron was selling for $5, but declared there "is a case in the courts about it right now." The upstairs exhibit carried the iron which OPA had priced, but conceded the retailers showed the iron which was really made.

"We call this lack of quality real inflation," the retailers declared. "It's throwing money away to buy some of this stuff, and we do not think OPA is protecting the consumer when it allows this to happen."

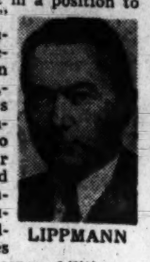
Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The U. S. A. In The Middle East

THE PRESIDENT had no choice but to "accede" to the view of the British government that "it was not in a position to adopt the policy" he had recommended—namely to grant an additional 100,000 certificates for the immigration of Jews into Palestine. For while the United States has considerable influence in the Middle East, it does not now have responsibilities or power.



LIPPMANN

What can be done by influence alone is, in the conditions of the Middle East, something but not much.

THE PREDOMINANT power in the Middle East is Great Britain. Not only does it hold the mandate for Palestine, but it is in fact the principal western power in relation to the whole Moslem world from Tripoli in the Central Mediterranean to the Netherlands Indies in the South Pacific. The British position in this extended region of the earth is precarious. For Britain is deficient in the essential elements of authority—in prestige, in military power, and in capital resources.

Her prestige is impaired by the rising tide of nationalism among the Moslem and Hindu peoples of North Africa and South Asia. The military power which the British Isles can maintain in that part of the world is exceedingly limited; as a matter of fact, Great Britain has to draw on India, as the affair in Java illustrates, for the troops which would be required if her authority were put severely to the test.

Finally, Great Britain is now heavily in debt, as a result of the war, to India, Egypt, Palestine, and also to Iraq. For an imperial power, a protecting power, or even for an international trustee, it is wholly abnormal that the dependent peoples should be the creditors rather than be able to draw upon the sovereign power for their own capital development.

THESE ARE THE determining reasons why the British government—in spite of the public pledges given by the Labor Party before the election—is "not in a position to adopt a policy" which the Arab kingdoms and the Moslems of India are threatening to oppose with violence. It is also the reason why President Truman could not insist upon his request.

If the British believed their position was strong in the Middle East, Mr. Attlee would almost certainly have gone a very long way, without much insistence from us, toward carrying out the President's request. But believing they are not strong, the British do not believe they could carry out the agreement if London had agreed with Washington. The President had no choice but to accept the British estimate of their own authority and power. He could not insist that they exercise more authority and power than they think they can exercise.

IT HAS BEEN said that in agreeing to the British-American Committee of Inquiry, the President has accepted equal responsibility. As respects that part of the inquiry which is to deal with the relief and protection of the Jews who prefer to remain in Central Europe, or have to remain at least for the present, this is true. This is as much an American as it is a British responsibility; it is in fact the common responsibility of the United Nations.

It is a special responsibility for the United Nations only insofar as the plight of the Jews is worse than that of other innocent victims of Nazi oppression and of the devastation of war. But it is a problem of relief and rehabilitation, and of the restoration of law and order based on the equal rights of men. It is a part of the problem of Europe, and is soluble finally only by solving the European problem.

BUT AS RESPECTS Palestine the British and American responsibilities have not yet been made equal. For the United States is not now a Middle Eastern power. American sympathy for Zionism, American oil concessions, American missionaries, do not make us a Middle Eastern power equal with Britain. The Middle East is the British sphere of influence—if I may use this accurate but taboo phrase—because Britain alone can take military and administrative action.

Therefore, in the inquiry about Palestine, the solution selected is bound to depend on whether the United States is to become in fact, not by virtue of its influence in London but by its presence in the Middle East, a principal power in that part of the world. The Palestinian solution will be one thing if our role is limited to recommending what Great Britain, which is on the spot, is to carry out. It can be a quite different solution if the United States makes the momentous decision that the whole Middle East is a region of such vital interest to the peace and prosperity of the world, that we must be present in the Middle East—present somewhere, for example at the port of Haifa—exercising not only influence from the distance of Washington but influence radiating from some local point of actual American power.

THE DECISION that has to be taken by President Truman and Secretary Byrnes, and of course, approved by Congress and the people, is comparable in its importance with that taken in 1900 by President McKinley and Secretary Hay in regard to China. That was the beginning of the chain of events which led us into the Philippines, and into Eastern Asia, and through Pearl Harbor to General MacArthur's occupation of Japan. If we now find, as I am afraid we must, that in the Middle East, as in the Far East, we have a vital interest that cannot be neglected, then let us be sure we have learned the grim lesson of our Far Eastern policy, the lesson of being committed but not being clear how much we were committed, and of having commitments, as in the Philippines, which we refused to pay the price of supporting effectively.

WE COULD ENTER the Middle East as a power,—as distinguished from an influence or as ultimate backers of the British position—only in open agreement with the British government and the Soviet government. For strategic reasons there would have to be high priority for an agreement providing for guaranties—given and taken and capable of mutual enforcement—about the Dardanelles, the accessibility and the security of the Black Sea and the Mediterranean.

The question whether we wish to become a Middle Eastern power is, of course, ultimately our own decision. But if we are to become such a power, the question of how and under what conditions, is one which will have to be negotiated at the very highest levels of diplomacy in London, Moscow, and Washington. The conclusions of the Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry will be determined by how these greater questions, which are outside its terms of reference, are answered.

Off the Record

"Watch this!"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

HERE IS ONE important tip-off showing the Administration knew war was coming in the Pacific, but expected it in the Philippines . . . Admiral William Glassford, commanding United States gunboats in the Yangtze Patrol, carefully shepherded his fleet out of Shanghai across tempestuous seas to Manila. They were flat-bottomed boats, dangerous in rough, deep-sea weather, but, knowing the Japs were about to strike, he made the emergency trip just before Pearl Harbor . . . At that time everyone expected the Japs to strike the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies or Singapore . . . One thing Pearl Harbor Congressmen don't want to investigate is why, in view of these expectations, General MacArthur got caught with all his planes on the ground, losing 300 fighters and all his Flying Fortresses . . . If GOP Congressmen do investigate—which they probably won't—they'll find that the Air Force officer in command of those planes urged MacArthur to let him take them off Clark Field—where the Japs later smashed them.

John L. Lewis Orates

BEETLE-BROWED John L. Lewis delivered a speech in the secret sessions of the Labor-Management Conference last week which has both labor and industry delegates buzzing.

Though Lewis is the most feared and hated of all labor leaders, his speech brought cheers from industry members, frowns from certain labor leaders.

"It's the best management speech on the whole wage-price issue," applauded H. W. Steinkraus of Bridgeport Brass, a management delegate.

What the mine union boss demanded at the closed-door meeting was wage increases, but—and it was a very big but—he also demanded price increases for industry. This cuts right underneath the whole position of President Truman and many labor leaders, namely that wage increases plus price increases are meaningless, would only mean that labor paid more for everything.

President Truman and advisers have maintained that, while this might bring temporary benefits for organized union labor, it would hurt teachers, white-collar workers and, later, organized labor. Truman also maintains that industry has made enough profits from the war to afford wage increases and still make money, especially with taxes greatly reduced.

The fact that John L. Lewis opposed this indicated to insiders a three-way play: (1) He wants to undercut CIO's Phil Murray, who favors the Government's position of wage increases without price increases; (2) He is bidding to take AFL leadership away from Bill Green; (3) He isn't averse to wrecking the entire Labor-Management Conference.

John L. also has been handing out statements needling the steel and auto workers, telling them that they are asking for piddling wage increases. The Lewis statements are calculated to stiffen auto and steel workers backs, make them dissatisfied with CIO leadership. Also, they are likely to help precipitate a strike, and Lewis knows from his own experience in the recent coal strike that strikes right now can be most unpopular with the public.

Naval War Tug

A TERRIFIC backstage battle is raging between the admirals over who will replace Admiral King as Chief of Naval Operations. The combat admirals want Admiral Chester Nimitz. They saw him operate in the Pacific. Admiral King himself is pushing Admiral Raymond Spruance, also an A-1 man. Secretary Forrestal is supporting Admiral R. S. Edwards, now Deputy Chief of Naval Operations and a leading promoter of Navy imperialism. . . . . The first trial of the Kansas Kingfishes begins today when the head of the Kansas State Police faces a jury—if Judge Helvering doesn't postpone it. . . . . Last week Gen. Lucius Clay, No. 2 boss of Germany, announced publicly that United States authorities in Naziland have asked for an additional 30 million dollars worth of food for the German people. Yet, on October 16, in a secret meeting of American generals, Generals Clay stated privately that the United States zone has a special reserve of 300,000 tons of food which it did not want to use until American public opinion favored feeding the Germans.

Jesse Jones, the man whom Franklin Roosevelt kicked out of the Cabinet, is now the man who really runs his old job of Federal Loan Administrator—backstage. President Truman has closed his eyes to it, but Jones' position in Washington today is just about as powerful as ever. He operates from Room 450 in the Statler Hotel and his phone is so busy that not even his wife can reach him. . . . If you want to buy a jeep, a truck, a factory, an oil refinery or some old tires, it's Jesse Jones' old outfit which handles it.

Little Business Break

HARD-WORKING Attorney General Tom Clark has written a confidential memo to the White House advising that the Smaller War Plants Corporation cannot be gobbled up by the Commerce Department and Jesse Jones' old RFC without an act of Congress . . . This is a break for little business . . . The Smaller War Plants Corporation had been doing a real job for the smaller businessman, also had won prestige on Capitol Hill . . . John Snyder, the small town banker, now War Reconverter, wanted to transfer it by executive order without congressional okay. In fact, the executive order was already drawn up when this columnist broke the story, following which the problem was referred to the Attorney General.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Carl Moran is another of the A-1 public servants deserting the Administration. He is going back to Maine, from whence he came, despite White House entreaties that he stay . . . John Gibson of Detroit, a CIO man, will take his place. This will balance the two Assistant Secretaries of Labor between the CIO and AFL.

Roosevelt College

BEHIND MRS. ROOSEVELT'S dedication of Roosevelt College in Chicago today is a unique story. Formerly, Chicago's YMCA College, a low-cost institution in the Loop, was supervised by leading Chicago banks. Suddenly they awoke to the fact that 25 per cent of the student body was Negro, asked President James Sprawling to put a quota on further Negro students. He refused, then handed in his resignation . . . Simultaneously, 92 per cent of the faculty resigned plus 97 per cent of the students. The bankers found themselves without a college . . . Marshall Field, the Julius Rosenwald Foundation, plus Chicago citizens then raised half a million to found a new low-cost college in the Loop. The old YMCA College is no more and Roosevelt College begins today . . . It's the first time that both students and faculty walked out simultaneously.

Gen. Devers Says He's Willing To Serxe Under Navy Officer

Gen. Jacob L. Devers, chief of Army Ground Forces, told Senators yesterday he would be willing to serve under a naval officer if the armed forces are consolidated.

The four-star general testified before the Senate Military Affairs Committee in favor of placing Army, Navy and Air Forces under a single department and commander.

Senator Austin (R., Vt.) evoked the general's comment when he asked about fears of some of the services that they would "be subordinated."

"I'd be glad to serve under a Navy man to start with," Devers said. "Real men will be placed in the top spots. They will place the good of the country first, not the good of the Ground Forces, Navy or Air Forces."

Several Navy Department leaders, in opposing the unification legislative proposals, have expressed belief the Navy would suffer under such a plan.

Devers contended that creation of a single defense agency would control of the armed forces and also strengthen traditional civilian control improve peacetime defense preparation.

Education Week in Arlington Shows 10 Years of Progress

A decade of "remarkable progress" in Arlington County schools was cited yesterday by the Arlington Educational Association as the county observed National Education Week.

The association stated that "chaotic international conditions existing during the period" had "inevitably" affected institutions near Washington, but that in spite of such conditions, the per capita cost of instruction, based on average daily attendance has nearly doubled from 1930 to 1944-45.

Exclusive of debt service and capital outlay for the school year, the per capita cost at present is $90.15, as compared with $48.78 in 1930. The period has seen an increase in total school enrollment from 4840 in 1930 to 10,906 in 1945, the association stated.

Total cost of Arlington County school buildings and sites for the 1944-45 school year was $3,119,840.25, the association stated, compared with $1,656,500 in 1930. In spite of this increase, however, greatest school need at present is additional classroom space, the association declared.

Present Arlington teaching staff is 349, as compared with a total of 129 in 1930. Basic professional requirement for a beginning teacher in Arlington is a bachelor's degree, however, a "good percentage of the experienced teachers have higher degrees," the association explained.

Poles Need Not Pay 300 Million Back to Britain

London, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Britain does not expect Poland to repay 300 million dollars advanced to it for military equipment and maintenance of its army fighting overseas, but it does expect $284,000,000 spent by the Polish government in exile and expended in pay allowances and pensions to Polish troops under British command, it was announced today.

An official commentator denied a statement by Polish Foreign Minister Wincenty Rzymowski that Britain expected Poland to pay for every bomb and every gun used by Polish forces during the war. He said that under an agreement with the exile government which functioned in London, Britain regarded the 300 million dollar military fund as lend-lease and required no repayment.

There is, however, a bill outstanding for $284,000,000, the commentator said, which the Polish government will be required to repay. That includes $180,000,000 for pay allowances and pensions to the army and $104,000,000 in a "civil budget" which covered the exile government departments in London.

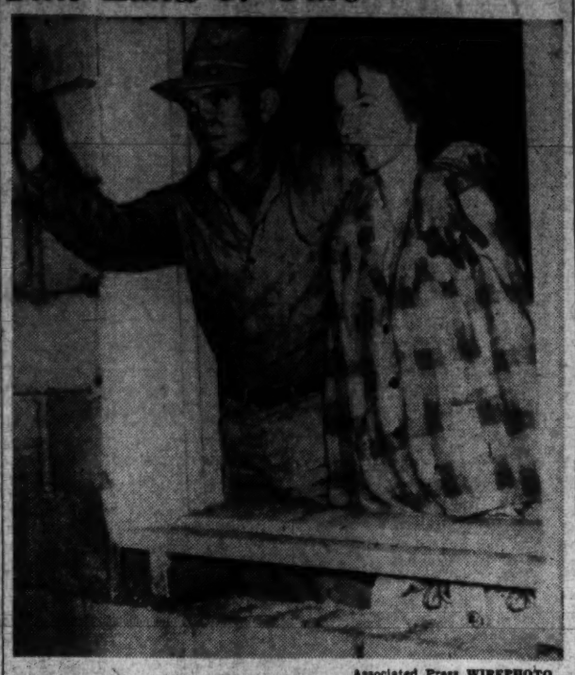
This Land of Ours



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

HERO AND BRIDE—Gene Atkins, 24-year-old Congressional Medal of Honor winner, and his childhood sweetheart-bride, standing at an unfinished window of their home, gaze out over the 62 acres bought for them by their Spartanburg, S. C., neighbors in appreciation of the hero's part in the war. Atkins, the son of sharecropper parents, won his medal for action on Luzon. Gravely wounded and the dead of his platoon all around in the jungle, he kept firing on Jap attackers until he had accounted for 44

Paratrooper To Live Dream As Hotel Guest

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—Tomorrow there'll be a paratroop captain staying in the most luxurious suite of the Hotel Pennsylvania—living out a soldier's "dreams of home."

His rooms will face east so the sun can wake him up. He will be addressed as "mister," never as "captain."

For breakfast, coffee will be brewed in his room so he can smell it cooking.

Before retiring, a large dill pickle will be available to him. . . . and a banana split with three kinds of ice cream.

Dreams Came True

Such were the overseas dreams of Capt. Frank L. Lillyman of Skaneateles, N. Y., while he recovered from wounds in overseas hospitals.

Captain Lillyman, like all GI's, dreamed of his first, perfect, week at home. He wrote to the Hotel Pennsylvania.

He said he had saved $500, and then he asked for the suite facing east, the large motherly maid (preferably "wearing a black dress with a white apron and white cap").

Each morning, he said, he must be served a cup of English-made tea in bed, his wife must be presented with a bouquet of flowers and a new doll or another toy delivered to his daughter.

"In the suite, I would like a record player with any and all Strauss selections, especially 'Tales of the Vienna Woods' . . ."

"I am afraid my desires are a bit far-fetched but . . . can you do it?" he asked. "How much will it cost? (I am a captain, not a general.)"

James H. McCabe, hotel manager, read that letter several times.

"We shall do everything in our power to make this event something you will remember—always," he wrote. "'How much will all this cost,' you ask. The answer is: 'Not one red cent.'"

U. S., Britain Loan Accord Seen Shortly

By the United Press

Successful conclusion of Anglo-American negotiations for a United States loan to Britain is expected sometime next week, it was learned authoritatively last night.

These sources said the area of disagreement has narrowed down to the size of the loan this country is willing to make and two other matters.

The Americans, it was understood, feel that $3,500,000,000 would be enough to put Britain's war-weakened economy back on its feet. The British negotiations feel that four billion dollars is needed.

Still To Be Settled

It was said that the only other issues still to be settled are:

1. The provision which would enable Britain to defer payment in years when she could demonstrate her inability to pay.

2. The conversion into other currencies of pound sterling balances held in England.

This coincided with an earlier press conference statement of Secretary of State James F. Byrnes that points of difference have been reduced from five to three since last week.

The American view on the size of the loan, reportedly stems from the belief that removal of trade restrictions now imposed within the British Empire will bring about a large and rapid flow of trade, and that the restoration of British economic health will therefore not require the sum the British are asking.

The British take a more pessimistic view and are requesting the additional half billion.

Features of the loan which appear to have been finally settled include the rate of interest, expected to be 2 per cent, and the duration expected to be at least 55 years. This would include an initial five-year period of grace during which no payments would be made.

Labor Parley's Major Topics Seen Neglected

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer.

The executive committee of the labor-management conference yesterday refused to ride herd on subordinate working committees which have apparently not even talked about the principal objective of the conference—farming machinery to settle industrial conflicts when direct negotiations collapse.

The executive body postponed until tomorrow discussing whether the appropriate groups of the conference were "considering the subjects of major importance," and if not, what to do about it. On the motion of John L. Lewis, miners' chief, the committee abandoned a suggestion to take up the subject of arbitration or fact-finding machinery to handle strikes or threatened strikes.

Point Raised by Taylor

Reporting on these developments yesterday to newsmen, Conference Secretary George W. Taylor disclosed that while summarizing to the executive committee the progress by the other groups he raised the question of whether some subcommittee should not cope with the problem of what to do when collective bargaining failed to result in an agreement.

At this point, he said, the executive committee decided to wait until tomorrow, when it will receive interim reports from all other committees, to determine "whether there was a problem in that regard." The executive body decided, Taylor explained, that it would rather hear directly from the other groups than receive summaries via Taylor.

In Interest of Speed

In summarizing the progress of the various committees for the top group, Taylor said, he "wanted to be certain that the main subjects are being given consideration by a subcommittee or the executive committee, and the reason for presenting the report as I did was to try to speed that report up a little bit."

Taylor also repeated a statement he made the previous day that, except for one committee which dismissed the subject as being outside its jurisdiction, he had heard no discussion of mechanics for handling industrial disputes outside of that in collective agreements.

There may have been some discussion in committees which he had not heard about, Taylor admitted, "but certainly there was no discussion to the point where it was reported to me as one of the primary items discussed by them."

Although newsmen inferred from the report of the executive committee's postponement of action that the steering group, like the rest of the conference, was stalling on the vital issue, Taylor expressed himself as optimistic of future action.

Public Aware of Issues

"I think folks are aware now that there are these major questions that need attention," Taylor said, "and it is unthinkable that the conference would go along without attnetion to this matter."

Late last night, however, it was learned authoritatively that the one committee specifically charged with considering disputes machinery, and from which, if from anywhere, recommendations for fact-finding or voluntary arbitration agencies would emerge, has almost completed its final report and has kissed off the subject with a brief generality.

Its report states that if collective bargaining breaks down, the disputants should apply themselves to such voluntary arbitration, as the parties may agree upon. It makes no suggestions as to detailed procedure, does not discuss the establishment of voluntary arbitration or fact-finding machinery, either governmental or bi-partite, and does not prescribe provisions in contracts insuring that both parties will apply such procedure.

Committees to Report

Taylor said that all the committees would submit interim reports to the executive committee tomorrow and that one committee, that considering representation and jurisdictional questions, hoped to finish its work completely by that time.

D. C. Rainbow Veterans To Hear Col. Sherrard

District of Columbia Chapter, Rainbow Division Veterans, will hold its monthly meeting Friday at 8:15 p. m. at the National Press Club. Lieut. Col. Robert G. Sherrard, jr., member of the staff of the new Rainbow Division, will describe operations of the division in Alsace, Germany and Austria.

Members of the chapter said they have endeavored to notify recently returned Rainbow men of the meeting. They declared that all men who served with the Rainbow are invited.

Check and Double-check

Have you ever noticed that whenever two trains pass, freight or passenger, a trainman will signal, with hand or lantern, to the trainman at the rear of the other train?

This is not merely a friendly gesture. Each man makes a careful visual inspection of the other's train while it passes. Then he signals that all is well or that he has spotted some defect.

This is just one phase of a continuous "check and double check" system. All Union Pacific trains are thoroughly inspected before leaving terminal points . . . all station agents check each train as it passes. Even track crews, along the right of way, are alert to spot any sign of trouble.

* * * *

Thus, Union Pacific trains are checked time and time again as they transport passengers and freight over the Strategic Middle Route, uniting the East with the mid-West and the Pacific coast.

Yugoslavs Vote "Ja"

If the outcome of any election was a foreordained conclusion, it was the election in Yugoslavia. To be sure, observers are agreed that the voters who went to the polls, as between 85 and 90 per cent of them did, were subjected to no direct form of intimidation. Balloting, for instance, was in secret, in contrast to what obtained in 1938, when voters were required to ballot openly. But the choice presented to the voters was, for the most part, no choice at all. If they did not want to vote for the parties of the so-called Liberation Front, which is under Communist domination, they could, of course, stay away from the polls altogether. Many feared to do this from fear of making themselves conspicuous and thus of courting the attention of the OZNA, Marshal Tito's secret police, or they could cast blank ballots. About 10 per cent of the voters apparently did just that. But even had this silent protest vote been greater, it would not have affected the outcome, since the opposition groups, deciding that there was no opportunity for them to conduct a free campaign, decided to boycott the election.

In contrast with what happened in Hungary the other day, the election in Yugoslavia was thus anything but a free expression of the popular will. It was, on the contrary, on all fours with the plebiscites which Hitler and Mussolini used to permit the German and Italian peoples to participate in for the purpose of proving to the world the all but unanimous popular support which their regimes enjoyed. A totalitarian by instinct, habit and belief, Marshal Tito has used this particular method of perpetuating his control over the Yugoslav people.

Much In A Name

The Joint Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures has collected a wealth of valuable information on the duplication and overlapping of governmental agency functions. As a result Senator Byrd, its chairman, is in a position to make most constructive suggestions concerning reorganization of the executive establishment.

A glance at the committee's comprehensive chart showing the existing organization of executive departments and agencies is enough to convince anyone of the need for some uniform system of labelling various departmental subdivisions. The lack of such uniformity is not merely bewildering to those having dealings with Government agencies, it provides strong circumstantial evidence of fundamental weaknesses and defects in the present administrative setup. When we talk about Government divisions, agencies, offices, bureaus and services, those terms should imply a certain recognizable position in the Government hierarchy. The heads of these subdivisions of Government should exercise varying degrees of responsibility; their duties should determine their ratings within the departmental framework. In short, lack of system in labelling departmental units makes for inefficient administration. Yet, instead of striving for greater uniformity of nomenclature, we have been acquiring new and often meaningless designations for Government units, such as authority, administration, corporation, company, etc.

Some of these fancy names, of course, will disappear as wartime emergency agencies vanish from the scene, and intradepartmental changes with a view to uniform classifications can easily dispose of the remainder. Extremely knotty problems arise, however, in connection with permanent Government agencies that are outside the regular departments. Senator Byrd recommends that all such independent establishments, excepting quasi-judicial or quasi-legislative agencies, should be assigned to appropriate departments. In many cases that is not doubt the proper step to take. For with scores of independent units operating outside departmental control, coordination at the Cabinet level becomes impossible. The result is confusion of policies and wasteful overlapping of activities. However, neither the Byrd proposals nor the reorganization bill now pending in the Senate deal satisfactorily with those few independent agencies that can lay claim to rank as departments headed by officials with Cabinet rank. The Federal Security Agency is an outstanding case in point.

We do not believe it would be conducive to greater efficiency to transfer such important agencies to already overloaded regular departments of the Government, as Senator Byrd suggests. Yet if the Senate reorganization bill should become law in its present form, the President would be forbidden to set up new executive departments or to designate the head of any new agency as Secretary. If reorganization has to proceed under such limitations, it appears more than likely that the "uniformity of nomenclature" which Senator Byrd desires will continue to be lacking, at least at the top. For the President would doubtless prefer to preserve the anomalous status of a number of independent agencies that might lay claim to departmental rank rather than shift them to the regular departments for the sake of achieving a superficial appearance of order and system.

Alternatives To Loans

Those Americans who object to financial aid to Great Britain on the ground that our money should not be used to foster socialistic experiments forget that dollars are not needed to nationalize or socialize Britain's domestic industries. With or without our assistance, the British can go, and intend to go, as far as they like in substituting public for private control of industry. In addressing Congress, Prime Minister Attlee drove home that point in a manner admitting of no misinterpretation. "In our internal policies," he said, "each [country] will follow the course decided by the people's will. We shall be working out a planned economy. You, it may be, will continue in your more individualistic methods." In so saying Mr. Attlee was merely affirming the right of every sovereign nation to choose the form of government it prefers, free from external interference.

However, the chief purpose of Britain's planning, whatever form it may take, is to raise the living standards of the people. And that, as Mr. Attlee admits, can only be done by trading with the rest of the world. Here is where we enter the picture. It is for us to decide whether we wish to assist the British to expand their trade along liberal lines under conditions such as we desire or let them find a solution without our aid. Instead of talking as if a loan to Britain were a kind of largesse justifying meddling in her domestic political affairs, we should be weighing the benefits to our own country of temporary aid to our best foreign customer. Unless we provide a means of bridging temporarily the gap between Britain's current debits and credits on international account, she will be compelled to cling to exchange controls, to restrict imports and to stimulate exporting by means of bilateral trade agreements, imperial preferences and other discriminatory devices. In other words, she will be compelled to bludgeon her way back to recovery.

Many supporters of the Labor government would no doubt prefer to see existing controls over foreign trade tightened rather than abandoned. They believe that progress toward a planned economy would be gravely impeded by a reversion to unrestricted foreign trade and free exchanges. We think that reasoning is absolutely sound; a fully regimented economic society, such as Russia, for example, obviously cannot permit free trading with the rest of the world. However, the British are still in an early stage of their socialization program—a stage at which foreign trade can still be carried on by private industries free from hampering governmental restrictions. But it cannot be done unless we are prepared to give the British a temporary boost sufficient to permit them to dispense with the artificial supports they have come to rely upon to tide them over their grave foreign exchange crisis. By giving such aid, we shall be working to arrest rather than to speed up the socialization of Britain's economic system.

Reflection On Congress

The House Committee on Un-American Activities, reincarnated at the behest of Representative John Rankin after the political demise of its former chairman, Martin Dies, shows how strong a force heredity can be. The present group, controlled by Mr. Rankin although Representative John Wood is its nominal chairman, is a chip off the old block. Whatever hope may have existed for a reform in its manners and morals has by now been altogether dissipated. Like its forebear, it is up to the old and ugly tricks of imputing guilt by association, blackening reputations by unsubstantiated allegations and witch-hunting among progressives. It continues to be a sleazy reflection upon the great legislative body in the name of which it is permitted to speak.

The latest item in the catalogue of this committee's assaults on traditional American freedoms is its action in "requesting" the scripts of seven radio commentators. What legitimate concern can it have with them? That Mr. Rankin will disapprove of the views voiced by these men is scarcely to be doubted, since they have from time to time been no less critical of him than has this newspaper. That Mr. Rankin will consider this difference of opinion incontrovertible proof of their un-Americanism is to be taken for granted from his past leaps in logic. He is entitled, of course, to his own judgment of them. But his attempt to use the power of his congressional position to brand them as subversive is an attempt to intimidate them and their sponsors, an attempt to limit freedom of speech and an attempt, indeed, to subvert basic American institutions, which is itself the worst form of un-Americanism.

Under Mr. Rankin's guidance the House Committee on un-American Activities has undermined the prestige of Congress by its fatuity no less than by its bigotry. Like its predecessor, it has provided a forum for crackpots. It has darted from charges against UNRRA to an investigation of Hollywood. It has subpenaed and cross-examined a gentleman from Bridgeport—simply because he happened to be a relative of the Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs. It has elucidated the obvious by hailing into its presence Earl Browder and William Z. Foster. It has made a travesty of the investigative process and has caused Congress to look ludicrous. Congress, for its own sake, ought to put a prompt end to its antics.

It's Not Bargaining

The United Steel Workers' demand for a $2 per day wage increase was presented to the U. S. Steel Corp. in the form of an ultimatum. Since President Murray of the CIO declares that it is not subject to dickering or compromise, there is no room for bargaining. The company must either agree to the demand or prepare to fight it out, using the familiar weapons of industrial warfare. Since free bargaining is further hampered by the existing price ceilings on steel products, the company management is justified in concluding that there is no point in resuming negotiations.

The first step toward peaceful settlement of labor disputes lies in a proper understanding of the purpose and scope of collective bargaining. If conditions are laid down in advance by either side before entering the conference room, the subsequent negotiations become nothing more than a ratification of what has been previously agreed upon, and collective bargaining becomes a farce. In this particular instance, the reasonableness of a demand for a $2 wage increase can only be determined by means of a fact-finding inquiry into company production costs and profits. That information should not be broadcast to the public at large by the company as an answer to union demands but presented in conference along with counterproposals. Then and only then will it be possible to reach a decision fair to both sides and incidentally determine whether wage increases call for a rise in ceiling prices.

The steel impasse emphasizes the importance of setting up machinery for the peaceful settlement of labor disputes—the task that is now engaging the attention of the President's Labor-Management Conference. The first step is to define collective bargaining and decide what kinds of demands are proper subjects for bargaining. Until that is done, we shall continue to have unions and management sparring for position and resort to strikes or lockouts before the machinery for effecting settlements has even been tried.

Jerome Kern

Jerome Kern is dead, but many of his songs will go on living for a long, long time, and the finest of them all, "Ol' Man River," from Show Boat, will probably never be forgotten nor lose favor as long as there are baritones left in the world. Many others, no doubt, like "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," will be periodically revived. Jerome Kern's songs are not "dated" in the sense that the word might be applied to the music of, say, Irving Berlin or the late George M. Cohan, the titles of whose songs might be used as chapter headings for the social history of the past 30 or 40 years. Most of Kern's music is in the sentimentally romantic mood that is never quite out of fashion in this country. In this as in many other respects it resembles the music of Victor Herbert. Herbert wrote scores for light operas, Kern wrote them for musical comedies. In both, the influence of a German musical education is evident; but in the main, Kern's melodies are lighter, gayer, faster and less heavily coated with orchestral honey.

Since the first performance of The Girl From Utah in 1914, when Julia Sanderson sang, "And when I told them how wonderful you were, they wouldn't believe me; no, they wouldn't believe me!", there has never been any real diminution of Kern's popularity as a composer. Now and then he might have been momentarily eclipsed by some contemporary, by Romberg or Cole Porter or George Gershwin, but not for long. Almost every one of Kern's musical comedies for the stage and later for the movies was a tremendous success. Greatest of them all perhaps were the Ziegfeld production Sally, in which the late Marilyn Miller sang "Look for the Silver Lining," and, of course, the Hammerstein production of Show Boat in which Norma Terris sang "Why Do I Love You?" and night after night the great Negro baritone, Jules Bledsoe, all but ended the show with the singing of "Ol' Man River." Unlike most of his predecessors in the field, Jerome Kern was technically a thorough musician, too good a musician not to realize he was something less than a great one. But within his own metier he has had no betters and few peers.

McCloy Resigns

With the resignation of Mr. John J. McCloy as Assistant Secretary of War, the Government loses still another first-rate public servant at a time when, with problems of great and growing complexity facing the Nation, the need of efficient administrative personnel, particularly at the higher levels, is steadily mounting. As former Secretary Henry L. Stimson's principal liaison officer with other departments of the Government, a role he continued to play under Mr. Stimson's successor, Secretary Patterson, Mr. McCloy has rendered yeoman service. With the war over, personal reasons dictate for him, as for others before him, a return to private life. The principal motive for most of these men in entering public service was to make a personal contribution to the war effort. With that motive removed, many of them find Government work irksome.

In some cases, however, an important contributory reason for quitting is that the Government simply does not pay these war-workers enough. It is only by offering men of talent salaries at least partially commensurate with the salaries paid by private interests that the Government will succeed in getting the administrators it needs to carry on its functions efficiently. For a few years, under the stress of war needs, men may make financial sacrifices to stay in Government, but they cannot be expected to make those sacrifices indefinitely.

British Relations

By Malvina Lindsay

Family Qurraels

THE LITTLE GROUP of Britons and Americans had finally gotten past surface pleasantries to exploring Anglo-American relations. "I understand," said an American woman, "there's a surge of anti-American feeling now in England."

"I hadn't heard of it," said a British colonel. "But I've been away, and our newspapers are more restrained about such things than yours."

"It's true," spoke up a London woman, here a year. "I get it in letters. People keep asking, 'What's the matter with the Americans?' You see our people's nerves are a little taut. They're still on skimpy rations, in cold houses. The abrupt ending of lend-lease was a shock—our leaders were partly to blame for not preparing us—and then came this loan discussion."

"That loan's bringing out plenty of anti-British feeling over here," observed the colonel.

"THE TROUBLE IS," said an American doctor, "as soon as any issue comes up between our two countries, all the ghosts of our past prejudices and misunderstandings flock to the conflict. We become personal and emotional about things that need to be looked at objectively."

"We must have some new ghosts now," said an American woman. "Our troops couldn't have been quartered on the overcrowded Britishers without a lot of stepping on each other's toes."

"Money partly was at the bottom of that," spoke up a British major, recently in England. "An American serviceman with a pocket full of money could get the goods, the service and the girls. British servicemen, who get much less pay, resented this. But they were usually of the groups of lesser understanding. It was amazing on the whole how well the two armies worked together."

"Let me say," volunteered the London woman, "that I believe most British families were impressed by American servicemen's kindliness and good manners. Time and again I've heard my friends in England remark how well American mothers had brought up their sons."

"So much good came out of our war contacts," said a former Wac, "that I hate to see this haggling and snarling developing between us now." She turned to the doctor. "Why is it we can't ever discuss anything controversial with each other without our posing as honest countrymen about to be fleeced by city slickers, and them taking the role of a martyr mother of ingrate offspring?"

"Maybe we'd better get back to the weather," suggested the older American woman.

"No" said the doctor, "this is just what we should be doing, bringing our prejudices into the open. They handicap our getting along with each other more than do the big issues."

"Don't some of our politicians know that!" exclaimed the Wac. "That's why they make a racket out of shouting that we're giving America back to England, fighting her wars, and all that stuff."

"We have some who do the same in reverse," said the major.

"IT'S HARD FOR some of our people," explained the doctor, "to give up the idea that all Britons are the red-coated tyrants of '76. The Revolution is our great heroic saga. It still makes us swell our chests—how we, a little handful of virtuous backwoodsmen, beat the powerful, crafty British tyrants. Our history books have always glorified our part in it."

"And our history books," said the colonel "have told us almost nothing about the Revolution or about America. Nor do our people understand how diverse the American population is—how it contains such large Scandinavian, German, Italian and other non-English strains, and that hence Americans cannot be expected to feel or act like Colonials. Also, your movies make us see all Americans as either plutocrats or gangsters."

"What things do we do that irritate you most?" bluntly inquired the Wac.

"Nothing — personally," said the colonel. "But speaking generally, your habit of overstatement and ours of understatement cause some misunderstanding. We hold back about personal affairs and achievement. You don't. You call it promotion. It's part of the system here. You have to promote and advertise to get places. We just don't do it that way."

"How do we annoy you chiefly?" asked the London woman.

"I think some Americans—not myself, understand—" said the Wac, "are irritated by your voices and diction. They're probably jealous. Also, your reserve makes you seem a little stuffy to us. We think we're being snubbed."

"It's something like a family quarrel," said the American woman. "Maybe it's well we are so frank with each other."

"No," said the doctor, "family quarrels hold danger. Ugly things may come out of them. The British and ourselves now have to get along with each other and the rest of the world, willy-nilly, and we can't afford the luxury of petty hatreds between ourselves. There are some things in British policy I don't like. You British probably feel the same way about our procedures. But we ought to stop this childish, personal yapping at each other over little things and past things if we ever expect to settle the bigger issues."

Palestine Plan

By Barnet Nover

Evasion Of Responsibility

IN HIS STATEMENT announcing the establishment of a joint Anglo-American committee to inquire into the Palestine problem and the situation of the Jews in Europe, President Truman said:

"The establishment of this committee will make possible a prompt review of the unfortunate plight of the Jews in Europe . . . and the prompt examination of questions related to the rate of current immigration into Palestine and the absorptive capacity of the country."

"The situation faced by displaced Jews during the coming winter," the President added, "allows no delay in the matter. I hope this committee will be able to accomplish its important task with the greatest speed."

HOW URGENT that situation is was revealed last August by Earl G. Harrison, former Commissioner of Immigration and now dean of the University of Pennsylvania Law School. At President Truman's request Dean Harrison made a survey of displaced persons' camps in western Europe.

He came to the conclusion that: "The main solution, in many ways the only real solution, of the problem lies in the quick evacuation of all nonrepatriable Jews in Germany and Austria, who wish it, to Palestine. In order to be effective this plan must not be long delayed . . . It is inhuman to ask people to continue to live for any length of time under their present conditions."

With this view, apparently, President Truman still agrees.

THERE IS NOT the slightest indication from the statement issued by Foreign Secretary Bevin on Tuesday that the British government has, however, receded in the slightest from its opposition to the President's proposal of August 31. Mr. Truman then urged that 100,000 certificates for immigration to Palestine be issued by Great Britain forthwith.

The most the Labor government is willing to go in this regard is to permit a limited quota of 1500 immigrants to enter Palestine each month.

At that rate it would take more than five years and a half to move to Palestine the number of surviving Jews whose plight is so bad as to demand their immediate removal to that country. Under present circumstances that would mean the doom of many of them who might yet be saved.

THE FACT of the matter is, as a reading of Bevin's statement makes clear, that Bevin approaches the problem from exactly the opposite view from that of the President.

What Bevin sees in the joint inquiry scheme is not a means by which immigration into Palestine can be hastened, but a method by which it might be retarded and the whole problem postponed until the time, if ever such a time arrives, when it would be less troublesome than at present.

Bevin said, quite rightly, that "the Jewish problem is a great human one." Nor will anyone disagree with his contention that: "We cannot accept the view that the Jews should be driven out of Europe and should not be permitted to live again in those countries without discrimination."

But in putting the matter on that basis he is clearly evading the issue. The total number of Jews in Europe has been cut down to a fraction as a result of Nazi persecutions and slaughter of the last decade. But the 100,000 which Dean Harrison and President Truman have urged to be admitted into Palestine constitute only a fraction of that surviving remnant.

The remainder, it is hoped, will be able to rebuild their shattered lives in their former homes and enjoy there that status of free men which it was the aim of the Allies to secure for all.

INDEED, Bevin's statement as a whole is an extraordinarily curious document, not least so coming from the Foreign Secretary of a Labor government and a man who, like his colleagues, never took kindly to the Palestinian policies pursued by past governments.

Yet he now insists on declaring that those policies achieved validity because some British government proclaimed and pursued them.

"In dealing with Palestine all parties," he said, "have entered into commitments. There are the commitments imposed by the mandate itself; and in addition the various statements of policy which have been made by His Majesty's government in the course of the last 25 years."

The fact of the matter is that there are no commitments which a Labor government is under any compulsion to respect except those arising out of the mandate. Certainly it is under no compulsion to respect policies which, like the White Paper policy on immigration, were in flat violation of the mandate.

It is a rather disturbing fact that the first joint approach on the Palestine problem by the British and American Governments should begin with this basic conflict of approach. The inquiry will lead to nothing but more confusion if it is viewed by President Truman as a means of hastening the entry of 100,000 displaced German and Austrian Jews to Palestine and by Foreign Secretary Bevin as a means of preventing that very course.

Indeed, on the part of both governments, the Anglo-American agreement on Palestine represents a grim evasion of responsibility, words used to cover up weakness. The spectacle is a sorry one.

China's Dictatorship

Quite aside from the possible merits of the Chinese "Reds" (and their constructive achievements are attested both by U. S. observers and by popular support in the territory they occupy), the undemocratic, even anti-democratic attitude of Chiang Kai-shek and his close associates should cause us to take another good look before we involve ourselves further in this situation.

We say that in backing the central government we hope for a unified China. But do we hope to achieve it under Chiang?

He has maintained in office the most reactionary officials, notably the Chen brothers, or CC clique, not to speak of Marshal Yen Hsi-shan, Governor of Shansi, who never fought the Japs actively (but did fight the Chinese Communists).

Chiang has failed to allow democracy in "Free China," allowing only one party, maintaining rigid press censorship, arresting and interning in concentration camps those who had "dangerous thoughts."

Chiang has failed his country economically: the rich get richer and the poor get poorer. High officials are involved in a scandal over purchases of gold, but minor officials are executed in punishment.

So what are we backing but a corrupt, inefficient dictatorship? And if playing the part of quartermaster and transportation corps is not "intervention," then what is it? It makes us look pretty hypocritical while we are crying out against Russian intervention in foreign countries.

Shelter

Now that winter's blasts are here, wouldn't it be a noble gesture on the part of the Capital Transit Co. to furnish the poor citizen, waiting for the buses and trolleys that never seem to come when the breeze is coldest, with some shelter? Perhaps the Surplus Property Board can make available some huts, Nissen buildings, etc., and we could have a shelter every ten blocks.

Ringworm In D. C.

In the last few weeks the Health Department of D. C. has raised a commotion in the barber craft, and worried many mothers of young boys. The notion that the clippers of the barbers cause ringworm is absurd. Years ago when most men shaved in barber shops, once in awhile some one would complain of having gotten the "barbers itch." This was nothing more than the result of a "very, very close shave."

Ringworm can sprout out from many sources: dirt, dirty towels, dirty hands or fingers; handling of dogs, cats, cattle, pets of all kinds and mostly from vegetable parasites-fungus. What is happening now in Washington among school children is just an epidemic, mainly caused by congested conditions, or some other factor which no one can accurately determine. If the barber's clippers were the cause of ringworm now, why was it not so four or five years ago? And why in this city only? How does it come that some boys have the mark of ring worm where the clipper was nowhere near the spot?

All barbers should apply a good dose of an antiseptic solution on the part where the clipper was used. It can be an after shave solution, 70 per cent strength; or alcohol of the same strength or even a good mouth wash. Mothers at home, can easily cooperate with the barbers, and help stamp out the disease by applying some of the above antidotes. One need not be afraid to use alcohol every morning on the head, for it does not dry the scalp as many people claim.

There should be laws in every State and city making it compulsory for men and boys to have a clean scalp when they go to have their hair cut. If they don't want to do it at home they should have a good shampoo before it is cut. In that way the barber's tools will be clean at all times. Besides, the barbers are entitled to protection, too, from the public.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Mr. Attlee's Speech

SPEAKING TO A joint session of Congress, Prime Minister Clement Attlee reminded his listeners that twice before, during the war, they had heard his predecessor in office, Winston Churchill.

The earnest Socialist paid a warm tribute to the inspired Tory who led Britain solely through the greatest threat to her national existence since the time of the Spanish Armada.

You could not help but think, seeing the thickest, rather stooped figure of Attlee, of the contrast between the two men. They are as unlike in every respect as day and night.

CHURCHILL IS dramatic, bold, brilliant in his use of language, fond of good food and drink, delighting in the pageantry and the picturesqueness of the past. Attlee is sober, cautious, hard-working, terribly in earnest, forswearing worldly pleasures for the promise of socialism.

Yet, for all the differences of personality and purpose, the policy of Attlee's government around the world has not thus far had a very different look from the policy of Churchill's government. If Churchill, instead of Attlee, had won the election in England last summer, liberals and leftists in this country would undoubtedly now be blaming tragic events in the Middle East and in southeast Asia on Churchill's imperialism.

In the minds of some of Attlee's listeners was the unhappy thought that, as he spoke of our ancient liberties, British tanks and British destroyers were killing Indonesian Nationalists in Java. Those Indonesians, according to A. T. Steele of the New York Herald Tribune, have taken the very concepts Attlee invoked—Magna Charta, the Atlantic Charter, the Bill of Rights—as slogans to fight for.

It is easy to use the word hypocrisy. It is too easy, it seems to me.

The concept of an England of free men, of an England showing the world the way to orderly democracy, is the concept that Attlee presented to Congress. That the basic freedoms in Britain could be encroached upon by a Labor government is nonsense. It was nonsense, and dangerous nonsense, when Churchill resorted to it in the heat of the election campaign.

But this concept has until very recently ignored the appendage of a great colonial empire. It has conveniently ignored the fact that, in part at least, those freedoms and the standard of living which went with them were possible because of the colonial empire.

THE TRADITION of empire, the weight of customs and habits deeply ingrained in millions of minds—and, above all, in the minds of soldiers and civil servants—will not be changed overnight by a change of government from Tory to Socialist. The process, like most of human progress, must be one of slow and painful evolution.

"In the British Commonwealth and Empire," Attlee said, "we offer an example of many nations, some of which have reached, others of which are approaching, full self-government. Even during the war, India was given the opportunity of taking complete charge of her own affairs, and in the colonial empire eight or nine new constitutions have been adopted or are being worked out, all based on the extension of democratic principles."

The danger in east Asia is whether, given the ferment of unrest produced by the war, any process of evolution will be sufficiently fast. Episodes such as that in Java blot the record in a way that may make achievement of a common democracy impossible.

One of the mistakes of our time was to think that, by applying a new political pattern, we would automatically change human behavior, either for better or worse. With respect to Russia, for example, some Americans want to think that communism has made the Russian people into new and perfect human beings; other Americans prefer to believe that it has pushed them back several centuries.

Political systems do not work magic changes. England as Attlee told us, will be England.

Letting France Down

Our shipments to France have been substantial but the long, and I believe inexcusable, hiatus between the end of lend-lease and the actual availability of a loan from the Export-Import Bank will make itself painfully felt in France quite soon. The beginnings of the restoration of French economy will be hazardously delayed by the hiatus. In that delay, there is developing fertile soil, in which the seeds of a political ideology wholly different from that which our interests require may be taking root.

A peek at the record indicates that the United States Government has not used its power to save "the precious advantages purchased with the blood of our sons." With five battle stars from the last war and a son who went through Iwo Jima, I believe I have a patriotic right to call for action.

Formerly Chief of French Division, Foreign Economic Administration.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Sen. George May Hold Fate of U. S. Pay Raise

PAY BILL: Senator George of Georgia is emerging as the key figure in the controversy over the Administration's proposals to raise the salaries of Federal employes and officials. His vote may prove to be deciding in committee. George is known to have been impressed with the argument for higher salaries and he was inclined to go along with the general principle. Now, however, Senator Byrd of Virginia, the opposition leader, is hot after George's vote. Byrd already has the vote of Senator McKellar of Tennessee in his pocket and Senator Hickenlooper of Iowa has joined forces with the Virginian. Senator Thomas C. Hart of Connecticut, like George, is listed as doubtful. He has appeared to be sympathetic with some sections of the bill though he is likely to vote with Byrd to postpone action.

KLUTTZ

SUPPORT: Chairman Downey of California can count on the support of Senators Mead of New York, Taylor of Idaho, Langer of North Dakota, and Aiken of Vermont, to support a pay increase bill, but not necessarily all the provisions indorsed by the Administration. In fact, Langer is opposed to the $10,000 increases proposed for members of Congress, judges, and top officials. And he has enough committee support to win his point. As reported here yesterday, the proposed $10,000 raises are likely to be cut to $5000. Downey has five sure votes in his 10-man committee. Three members oppose and two are doubtful. The odds definitely are in favor of reporting out a compromise bill. A suggested compromise would give a flat increase of from 12 to 15 per cent to white-collar employes whose salaries are fixed by the Classification Act.

SHOWDOWN: It may come today if George and Hart, th doubtful members, are present. Downey favors immediate action. Byrd will seek a delay A delay may either take the form of additional hearings or an indefinite shelving of the measure. Navy Secretary Forrestal and War Secretary Patterson are ready to support the bill if hearings are resumed. The committee yesterday gave a favorable report to the House-approved Randolph health bill which would lead to the creation of health units in Federal agencies. A minor amendment proposed by Senator Hickenlooper was adopted. It would merely prevent clinics from being set up where only a minor number of employes were involved.

DOWNWARD: That's the trend of Federal employment and it should give real comfort to Senator Byrd who has been leading the fight for reduced personnel. And incidentally, it should help the pay raise drive. In September alone a record number of 238,185 employes were dropped from the payroll, from 2,851,000 on September 1 to 2,613,000 on October 1. In Washington, the reduction was 11,198 during September to bring the Federal population here down to 239,892, the lowest level since March, 1942. Full-time women employes dropped to 921,000, the first time since March, 1944, that there has been fewer than a million women on the payroll. And another big slash will be reported for October. Preliminary reports indicate the number will be in excess of 150,000. It now appears certain that Federal employment will slump to two million by June 30 as predicted by the Civil Service Commission.

WAR AND NAVY departments reported the largest personnel cut backs, 128,085 for War and 70,304 for Navy. The emergency war agencies laid off about 30,000 employes. No major increase was reported for a single agency. Veterans was the largest with 1311 new people. However, the downward trend among low-grade clerical help has been too fast for the War and Navy Departments here. Both departments are in need of stenographers and typists to get out demobilization papers and the Civil Service Commission has had to resume recruiting in these fields. The reports show that there were 852,000 employes overseas in addition to the full-time employes in this country. The status of overseas people is frequently misunderstood by members of Congress. Overseas employes are made up largely of native personnel who are paid local wage rates which in many cases amounts to less than a dollar in our money. These people aren't under civil service and the only ones who are paid the United States wage rates are those who are shipped abroad from here.

DIARY NOTES: The Senate yesterday approved the officers' terminal leave bill and sent it to the White House. The bill is retroactive to June, 1940 . . . To the Commerce Department has been transferred 1700 former employes of the Foreign Economic Administration. Commerce plans to gradually reduce this staff to around 600 by late next spring . . . In the first six months of this year more than 1900 widows of World War II and wives of disabled men were given jobs in the Federal service . . . Now a State Department employe reports that he hasn't received war bonds paid for by payroll deductions since June. . . . George Bell, who has returned from Tokyo, will be appointed chief of the new foreign trade branch in the Commerce Department. He was FEA's representative in the MacArthur theater. . . .

Darden Sets Open Hearing In Prison Case

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—A hearing, open to the public, on charges of brutality and inadequate medical attention at the State Farm in Goochland, was scheduled today by Governor Darden before a subcommittee of the State Board of Corrections Monday, November 19, at 10 a. m.

The Governor wrote Howard H. Carwile, Richmond attorney, who was retained by Mrs. Helen Kuntz to investigate conditions at the farm, where her brother, Edward Wall, is an inmat, that the subcommittee would be made up of Albert V. Bryan of Alexandria and State Senator A. E. S. Stephens of Smithfield.

Acceptable to Carwile

Wall had claimed that brutal floggings were administered at the farm and that prisoners were forced to do heavy work when ill.

Carwile had objected to a hearing before the Board of Corrections on the ground that Maj. Rice M. Youell, commissioner of corrections would be partial, but today found the Governor's suggestion of a subcommittee hearing acceptable.

Governor Darden wrote Carwile that "the Board of Corrections is composed of outstanding citizens who have demonstrated their interest, time after time, in improving the penal system in Virginia. They are charged under the law with the administration of the prisons in Virginia, and I have asked them to arrange to hear you as to the charges which you make. . . .

Cites Medical Report

I am not familiar with the facts involved in the many accusations which you have made, both during your campaign for Governor and after, as to prison conditioins, but I am acquainted with the case of Edward Wall, about which you and Mrs. Kuntz, of Alexandria, La., have given a number of interviews to the papers. The accusations made in this case are not well founded.

"Mrs. Kuntz, shortly after her arrival from Louisiana, cameto see me about the physical condition of her brother, Edward Wall. I immediately asked that a thorough medical examination be made of the prisoner. This was done, and the report failed to disclose any serious physical impairment. . . .

Frederick-D. C. Highway Plan Still Embryonic

Frederick, Md., Nov. 14 (Spl.).—A four-lane highway between Frederick and Washington is still "very much in the tentative stage," although some preliminary surveys have been made, it was learned here today.

While the State Roads Commission has no funds for such a highway at the present time, both ground and aerial surveys have been undertaken. The location has been tentatively established as far north as Middlebrook, near Gaithersburg.

According to the survey, the four-lane highway would pass to the west of Bethesda, Rockville and Gaithersburg. The proposed road would shorten the 42 miles now existing between the two cities. The present highway by Urbana, Clarksburg, Gaithersburg and Rockville was constructed 20 years ago and has been little improved since that time.

Maj. Strong Rites Held in Culpeper

Culpeper, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—Maj. Putnam Bradlee Strong died Monday night in the University of Virginia Hospital at the age of 71. He had been ill for several days with pneumonia.

Funeral services were held at Culpeper today, with burial in the Stark section of the Fairview Cemetery.

Major Strong was the son of the late William L. Strong, one-time mayor of New York, and Mary Abron Strong of New York. Since he was retired from the Army he lived in Culpeper.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mildred Stark Streng of Culpeper.

Mrs. Roosevelt to Talk At Md. Church Parley

Havre de Grace, Md., Nov. 14 (AP). Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the late President, will speak on racial problems at as inter-racial meeting December 9, at St. Matthew's African Union Methodist Church, under the auspices of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The meeting was arranged by the Rev. W. H. Milburn, pastor of the church and secretary-treasurer of the Philadelphia district of NAACP.

Hitch-Hiker Indicted In Attack on Autoist

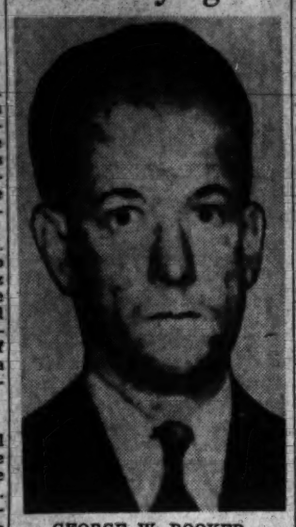
Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 14 (Spl.).—Robert W. Rawson, 18, of Worcester, Mass., was indicted on a charge of malicious assault by a Stafford Circuit Court grand jury yesterday in a case growing out of an attack on Robert B. Spencer of Stafford County, and the theft of his automobile on Route 1, October 9.

Spencer told police he picked up Rawson an danother youth who were hitch-hiking. After driving a short distance, he said he was clubbed into unconsciousness and thrown from his car. Rawson was arrested after an all-night search, but the other youth has not been found.

Fugitive Held in Va.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—Police Sergt. Francis Funk said today that authorities here are holding for Florida prison officials John Henry Lebridge, 28-year-old Negro, who admitted escaping from a Florida prison last July. He was serving a life term on conviction of clubbing his wife to death.

Awaits Hearing In Md. Slaying



GEORGE W. BOOKER, 34-year-old vending machine repairman, faces a hearing Monday in the fatal shooting of Navy Lieut. Rodgers E. Wilson at Booker's cottage near Leonardtown, Md.

Dr. Hutcheson Named Dean of VPI School

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—Dr. T. B. Hutcheson, Virginia Tech agronomy department head, will become dean of the school of agriculture on January 1, succeeding Dean H. L. Price, who held the post for 37 years.

Dr. Hutcheson was named to the new post at the quarterly meeting of the VPI board of visitors in Radford yesterday, at the same time that Dr. H. N. Young, head of Tech's department of agricultural economics, was made director of the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station. Dr. Young, who succeeds Dr. A. W. Drinkard, jr., director of the station for 29 years, will assume his new post also on January 1.

Both Dean Price and Dr. Drinkard had submitted their resignations, effective at a time to be set by the college administration. Both, however, will continue with the institution.

The appointments were announced last night by Col. James P. Woods of Roanoke, director of the VPI board of visitors. Dr. Hutcheson and Dr. Young will continue to head their present departments until July.

200 Disciples Meet in Strasburg

Strasburg, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—Upwards of 200 delegates convened today for the second day's joint sessions of the 113th annual convention of the Disciples of Christ in Virginia and the seventh annual meeting of the Christian Missionary Society of Virginia, at the Strasburg Christian Church.

Presiding over the 3-day meeting is the Rev. Ramon M. Bedford of the Belmont Christian Church, Roanoke, president of the convention.

The convention opened yesterday with addresses of welcome to the delegates by the Rev. Nelson M. Fox, pastor of the Strasburg Church, and Mayor C. S. McCarty of Strasburg. The Rev. Mr. Bedford spoke on "Split Atoms or Split Blood" at last night's session, and Mrs. Winfred Watson Smith discussed her experiences while confined in a Japanese prison camp in the Philippines.

Leviness Resigns State PSC Post

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 14 (AP).—Charles T. Leviness, general counsel of the Maryland Public Service Commission since June 17, 1944, has submitted his resignation, Governor O'Conor disclosed today.

At the same time, the Pennsylvania Railroad announced its board of directors has named the Baltimore attorney as the railroad's solicitor for Baltimore City, Anne Arundel and Charles Counties. The appointment will be effective Friday, the company said.

Second W. Va. Fugitive Caught at Kin's Home

Kingwood, W. Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—Paul Henry Hahn, 21, who joined a condemned Preston County man in a break from the Kingwood jail, surrendered today to State and county officers at the home of a sister, Mrs. Louise Roes, at Tunnelton, State Trooper A. M. Hurst said.

Hahn and William Turner, 29, sentenced to be hanged on December 25, for the shotgun slaying of Darla Dean Pratt, 15, near Newburg, escaped Monday just before their scheduled transfer to the Moundsville Penitentiary.

Turner was recaptured yesterday near Clarksburg after about 35 hours of freedom by a cordon of State and county officers aided by bloodhounds and airplanes.

Petrillo Ban Denounced by Va. VFW Post

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 14 (AP). Resolutions vigorously denouncing circumstances which prevented a group of United States Marine Corps musicians from the Quantico Marine Band from participating in Armistice Day services here have been unanimously adopted by the local post of Veterans of Foreign Wars. It is expected that similar action will be taken by the American Legion post at the next meeting.

Other veterans' posts in the State are being asked to adopt similar resolutions.

For Church Services

The request from local veterans for six or eight musicians from the Marine Band to furnish instrumental music for the Armistice Day service at the Presbyterian Church was granted by the commanding general at Quautico on condition that approval be obtained from the musicians' union.

The request was made to Frank P. Cowardin, president of the Richmond union, who advised that his group had no objection, but that union procedure required that the matter be referred to the American Federation of Musicians in New York.

Cowardin subsequently informed local veterans arranging the program that James C. Petrillo, president of the AFM, had refused to grant permission for the Marines to perform.

Declared "An Insult"

The resolution adopted last night after a brief discussion said:

"We do hereby denounce and condemh any Federal statute, rule or regulation of any department or bureau which prohibits, restrains, or discourages the use of service musicians at proper patriotic services in which no commercial element enters.

"We feel that such prohibition is an insult to our departed comrades in arms and that the English language has no words by which we can fully express our indignation and resentment of such arbitrary, callous and contemptible regulation."

Wayside Inn In Middletown Changes Hands

Winchester, Va., Nov. 14 (Spl.).—Wayside Inn, originally established in Middletown in 1797 has been sold by Mr. and Mrs. Parker Murray. The new owners are Dr. and Mrs. Frank Shattuck of Miami, Fla., who will continue to operate the hostelery.

The inn when first opened was known as Wilkerson Tavern. It was later purchased by Jacob Larrick and run as Larrick's Hotel.

Before and after the Civil War it was a relay station for the Shenandoah Valley Stage Lines. Since 1908 it has been operated by Mrs. Maggie Rhodes and in recent years by her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Murray.

The inn was one of the first in America to cater to auto tourists only, and prior to the beginning of World War II had an average yearly guest register of 8000 persons. There are approximately 40 guest rooms.

Many nationally famous people have stopped at the inn including General Sheridan.

The new owner has been associated with the hotel business in Florida and Michigan.

Fire Razes Oak Hill

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 14.—Oak Hill, 11-room frame residence on County road 600, one of the oldest homes in the Stony Point section, in the northern part of the county, was destroyed by a fire yesterday afternoon of unknown origin. The unoccupied white frame dwelling dated back to the Revolutionary period.

Two Md. Men Held as Makers Of Fake Coins

Baltimore, Nov. 14 (AP).—U. S. Commissioner James K. Cullen ordered today two Baltimoreans held for Federal grand jury action on charges of counterfeiting money, and dismissed the case against another, a private detective accused of representing himself as a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent.

Jacob Tweedale, 49, and Martin Jakulczak, 47, were held under $2500 and $5000 bail, respectively, after Howard S. Anderson of the United States Secret Service testified he had arrested both about one week ago in Jakulczak's home where plaster of paris molds of coin facsimilies and metal were discovered.

Coins Circulated

The metal, a lead alloy, was the same as that used in counterfeit coins the agent had obtained from Tweedale through an unidentified informant and intermediary, Anderson told the commissioner. Tweedale was traced to Jakulczak's house, he added.

The two had been planning to flood Baltimore with the homemade product around the Christmas business crush, Anderson declared. They had a number of "outlets" and some of their coins, 50- and 25-cent pieces, have been circulating for three months.

They sold the quarters for 15 cents and the half-dollars for 30 cents, Anderson stated.

Detective Cleared

In the other case heard by the commissioner, Joseph Thomas Gayhardt was found innocent after he denied allegations by FBI agents and three witnesses that he had deliberately created the impression he was an FBI agent while conducting an investigation to recover tools and equipment stolen from the Annapolis Yacht Yard.

Gayhardt, who is 39, said he had indicated he was investigating to recover private and Government property, but had not claimed to represent the Government or the FBI.

State P-TA Opens Parley, Hears O'Conor

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 14 (AP).—The Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers opened its thirtieth annual convention today with a session devoted to reports, including that of the nominating committee.

State President Mrs. Stanley G. Cook of Indianhead was in charge and reported on the group's activities on behalf of improved education in Maryland.

The nominating committee presented these names to be voted on at the third general session tomorrow.

President, Mrs. Robert Doty, Cumberland; first vice president, Mrs. Fred Bull, White Hall; second, Mrs. Milton D. Moore, Hagerstown; third, Dr. J. D. Blackwell, Salisbury; fourth, Mrs. Grace B. Downin, Hagerstown; Fifth, Mrs. Catherine T. Reed, Riverdale; sixth, Mrs. Thomas Pyle, Bethesda, and seventh, Mrs. Frank Smith, Riverdale; recording secretary, Mrs. JohnLong, Hagerstown; corresponding, Mrs. Austin S. Donaldson. Kensington, and treasurer, Mrs. John E. Lancaster, Cumberland.

It was reported that State membership is now near 25,000 and there are 200 State units.

A total of 317 delegates was registered this morning for the general banquet session tonight when Governor O'Conor and Charles W. Phillips, second vice president of the National N.C.P.T., spoke.

In addressing the convention, Governor O'Conor stressed the need of broadening the State's education system.

Southern Md. Woods Cleared For Site of Large New City

Leonardtown, Md., Nov. 14 (AP).—A woodland was being cleared by bulldozers today for what Leonardtown residents say will be Maryland's sixth largest city.

Patuxent Park, between Great Mills and the Naval Air Test Center, about 8 miles from Leonardtown, is scheduled by the Federal Housing Authority to cover 216 acres. The Housing Authority has begun to clear the area after numerous delays in acquiring titles to the various properties.

Plans call for 447 individual houses to be constructed on 60-foot lots, with an immediate total of 500 houses to be built as soon as more land is acquired by the Government.

Streets, public utilities, schools and a complete shopping center with a 1000-seat theater are included in the plans.

Patuxent Park is being constructed to meet the needs of about 20,000 men stationed at the Naval Air Test Center, and naval authorities were reported already to have requested 700 more houses to meet demands of civil service personnel stationed there.

Four hundred and seventy Federally constructed houses now stand at Lexington Park, just across the highway.

Under present plans, the new Patuxent Park houses will be two and three stories high each with two bedrooms, and will be available for immediate private purchase at between $6000 and $7000 each.

Although no definite cost figures for the new development were available, members of the Board of St. Mary's County Commissioners said they anticipated tax collections based on a total property evaluation of $3,000,000.

The Patuxent Park development represents the crest of a building wave which, local realtors estimate, has seen more than $500,000 in other property constructed in the county since the test center opened.

High Russian Prelate Visits In Maryland

Baltimore, Nov. 14 (AP).—Archbishop Alexei, head of the archdiocese of Yaroslav and Rostov and personal emissary of the Patriarch of Moscow and all Russia, hopes for a greater feeling of friendship between his country and the United States.

The archbishop, who visited Baltimore yesterday as part of his world-wide trip to unite the two factions of the Russian Orthodox Church, is the first emissary of the Russian church to come to this country since the 1917 Russian revolution.

"It was the spirit of the people themselves that carried our nations to victory. It is that same spirit which will carry our nations on to a lasting understanding and a permanent peace . . ."

Archbishop Alexei, who is scheduled to visit President Truman as a representative of both the Russian church and his country at the end of this month, said he expected his world-wide visit to be a major factor in bringing an understanding of his country.

"I want to thank the American people for their material help—both in supplies and fighting on a second front—so we were able to win the war," the archbishop said. "I am expressing these thanks for both my church and my country."

The archbishop was a guest of Baltimore's Holy Trinity Russian Orthodox Church.

State Health Head Lists Seven Rules For Use of DDT

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—Indiscriminate and negligent use of DDT can harm not only human beings but "good' 'insects, Dr. I. C. Riggin, State health commissioner, said today. He listed seven suggestions for the use of the agent.

They are as follows:

1. All food should be protected.

2. Care should be taken that DDT does not get on the skin; it is safer to wear gloves while using it. Should the solution inadvertently spill on the skin, wash promptly with soap and water.

3. Rooms sprayed should be well ventilated and remain unoccupied for at least a half hour; longer if the spraying is more intensive.

4. The spray should not be used near open flames.

5. Toys, dishes and other articles should not be sprayed.

6. Dogs and other animals should not be DDT-treated to rid them of ticks and fleas, except in dust form.

7. Directions and precautionary measures should be read and followed implicitly.

Albemarle Bid For UNO Weighed

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 14 (Spl.).—This county's bid for the location of the United Nations world peace headquarters will at least receive consideration by the deciding body, according to a letter received yesterday from London by Thomas L. Farrar, leader of the local group backing this location, advising that a proposal dispatched to England has been distributed among the executive committee of the UNO's preparatory commission.

Gladwyn Jebb, secretary of the committee, advised Mr. Farrar that the elaborate proposal prepared here and dispatched by air mail, had been received and presented to commission members.

Hunter Wounds Self

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 14.—John A. Johnson of Shepherdstown, W. Va., hunting with his father and others near here Monday, sustained serious flesh wounds when the automatic shotgun he was carrying was accidentally discharged when he tried to knock down an apple from a tree with the barrel of the gun.

SCC to Probe Cut in Norfolk Ferry Service

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—A representative of the State Corporation Commission probably will be sent to the Hampton Roads area "within a few days" to investigate complaints of service now being offered by the Chesapeake Ferry Co., a spokesman for the transportation division of the SCC said today.

An investigation was being considered by the commission just prior to the recent strike involving the ferry employes but was interrupted.

Meanwhile a conference was being arranged in Norfolk by City Manager Charles B. Borland with officials of the ferry company in an effort to obtain restoration of the service between Norfolk and Newport News on the same schedule before the strike. The last ferry now leaves Norfolk at 10:30 p. m. whereas the boats formerly operated until 12:45 a. m.

Spokesmen for the three unions whose members man the ferryboats said that it could not be lack of manpower which caused the management to cut the night schedules as they have "plenty of competent seamen" on waiting lists.

When the night schedule was changed recently, company officials indicated that it was necessitated by a shortage of manpower.

And in Newport News, the City Council yesterday indicated its displeasure over the 2-hour and 55-minute cut in schedule by instructing the city clerk to:

Ask the State Corporation Commissiorf to furnish a complete financial statement of the earnings and operations of the ferry company with a view toward reducing charges, if justified.

Notify the State Corporation Commission that the city protested changing of the schedule without legal authority.

Peirce Herd Sold For $150,000

Galena, Md., Nov. 14 (AP).—One of Maryland's leading pure-bred Aberdeen Angus herds is in new hands today.

An entire herd of 245 of the black beef cattle was sold by Albert E. Peirce, of Galena, to Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney for a price exceeding $150,000.

Bay Tonger Vanishes

Cambridge, Md., Nov. 14 (AP).—A search was instituted today for the body of Allie Vickers, 62-year-old Cambridge waterman, after he disappeared from his boat while tonging with an oyster fleet off Howell's Point in the Chesapeake.

C. W. Skelton Burial Today; Retired Pastor

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 14 (Spl.).—The Rev. Charles William Skelton, 72, retired Methodist minister, died yesterday at his home at White Hall, where he had resided for the past eight years. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon from Mount Moriah Methodist Church at White Hall.

He was a native of Tazewell County and before coming to Albemarle to make his home lived in West Virginia, where he filled numerous charges. Besides his wife, he is survived by one sister, Mrs. Netty Leedy of Bramwell, W. Va.

H. Lester Fitzgerald

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 14.—Haywood Lester Fitzgerald, 51, a veteran of World War I, died yesterday at his home on the Scottsville rd. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon. He was a native of Augusta County, son of the late Lum and Bonnie Thompson Fitzgerald. Besides his wife, the former Miss Ruth Wheeler, of Old Dominion, he is survived by five brothers.

William T. O'Rear

Winchester, Va., Nov. 14.—Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon for William T. O'Rear, former Winchester grocer, who died Monday afternoon at the Winchester Hospital. He was 70 and had been in ill health for some years. He was a native of Berkeley County, W. Va., and a member of the Brethren Church which he served as secretary-treasurer for a number of years. Six children and two sisters survive.

J. Grove Kneisley

New Market, Va., Nov. 14.—Funeral services were held Sunday in Woodstock for J. Grove Kneisley, 73, retired Woodstock businessman and civic leader. Mr. Kneisley was a former member of the town council, and a charter member of Wooodstock Rotary. For many years he and his brother operated a hardware store, and he was associated with other businesses. He is survived by two children, Miss Margaret Kneisley, R. N., Union Memorial Hospital, Baltimore, and Mrs. Frances Taliaferro of Hyattsville, Md.

Mrs. Mary S. DeHaven

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 14.—Services will be held from the home here tomorrow afternoon, with interment here, for Mrs. Mary Staub DeHaven, 98, one of this section's oldest matrons, who died at the home of her nieces, the Misses Margaret and Virginia Hess and Mrs. M. L. Machtel, this city, yesterday morning. She was active in church work for many years and taught a Sunday school class for a long time.

BARNABY

By Crockett Johnson

Poachers! Kidnapers! Rustlers! They stole the deer we shot! . . . But they'll rue it, Barnaby . . . When we catch them—
How will we catch them?
Pursue them, m'boy! What chance have they to escape? With a relentless Sigahstaw Indian on their trail? . . . Found their tracks, Howard?
Me findum tracks . . . Three Goodyear and one Firestone.
How far does the guy who bought this iron deer live, boss? . . . We've driven over thirty miles already—
About seven more miles.

Broadway Potpourri

New York, Nov. 14.—Justice Jackson will install a movie screen for the Nuremberg trials, and base his war crimes prosecution principally upon the films he will show. The German Propaganda Film Library was captured intact. From these Jackson obtained newsreel shots of each war criminal advocating the crimes, which the horror-camp films will show were subsequently accomplished . . . President Truman probably will attend the Army-Navy game . . . Visitors at Brentwood Hospital, Long Island, report that "Electric Whiskers," the bearded Italian general, was here for psychiatric treatment. Every time he'd answer a question, his aide would applaud "Bravo."

Nunnally Johnson invited Herman Mankiewicz—who never could qualify for membership in the Anti-Saloon League—to see a preview of the movie, "The Lost Weekend." Mankiewicz drew himself up haughtily, and scoffed: "Would you invite Admiral Halsey to come and play with the boats in your baby's bathtub?" . . . General Somervell is at White Sulphur Springs, recuperating from an operation . . . William McChesney Martin, the former president of the New York Stock Exchange, who recently was designated by Truman to the Export-Import Bank, will be promoted to the bank's chairmanship within the next few weeks . . . George Allen, the President's personal representative, may succeed Basil O'Connor as head of the American Red Cross.

—At the Soviet Embassy party last week the cake centerpiece was modeled after the Dnieper Dam. Blue-spun sugar was added, to make it look like running water. . . . Admiral W. M. Calaghan, the first skipper of the Missouri, who had to relinquish his command when he was promoted one month before VJ-Day, received a memento from the crew. The teakwood cut from the deck to make room for the surrender-plaque was made into a paper weight and presented to the admiral. . . Henry Morgenthau, jr., who kept a stenotyped record of every conference ever held at his office while he was in the Cabinet, is writing his memoirs.

At a luncheon in Washington last month, T. V. Soong announced that Dr. Wellington Koo was returning to Washington to succeed Wei Tao-ming as Ambassador. Soong discussed this with Dean Acheson, who did not disapprove. After that came the Washington news story mentioning Dr. Koo as the new Ambassador. But while Soong was on his way back to China, Chiang Kai-shek affirmed Wei Tao-ming's remaining as Ambassador . . . The Lotos Club will move from its present quarters to the E. 66th st. building once occupied by the German Club . . . Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia will start moving his belongings from Gracie Mansion on December 1.

Air Marshal Tedder, who was offered the city hospitality Sunday, stated his preferences: A visit to Radio City, seeing the Fred Allen broadcast, and then—for him—the Big Treat, listening to a symphony orchestra. "If no orchestras are performing," said Tedder, "I'm willing to spend the time just listening to symphonic recordings" . . . Marion Hargrove will do a cross-country lecture tour . . . Borough President Jim Lyons of the Bronx heard Mrs. Vincent Astor express a desire to meet Admiral Nimitz. Lyons introduced them: "Admiral Nimitz, Id like you to meet Mrs. Vanderbilt." When Mrs. Astor corrected him, Lyons shrugged: "Vanderbilts, Astors—to a guy like me, from the Bronx, it's all the same."

When President Rios of Chile visited Washington, Mrs. Barnet Nover, wife of the columnist, asked him: "Do you speak English?" President Rios replied that he knows only 3 English words, "Bread, Wine, Girl!" . . . Macoco will have his former mother-in-law joined as a codefendant in the lawsuit he brought against his former wife, Kay Williams Spreckles. . . Sir Alexander Korda visited Berchtesgaden and told the local custodian, "The furniture is terrible and in such bad taste, too." The German custodian sighed: "But Hitler could do nothing about it. That's the best he could get—made in the concentration camps."

The National Labor Relations Board now has 666 strike petitions pending—the highest in its history . . . David Hopkins has been promoted to lieutenant commander . . . Mrs. W. Averell Harriman went to a party attended by the Soviet Consul here. It was a rainy day and no cabs were available. Mrs. Harriman went to the party by bus. When the party was over, a maid told the Soviet Consul that his car was waiting. "You have a car?" asked Mrs. Harriman, whose husband, the Ambassador to Moscow, is one of America's wealthiest men. "Yes, I have a car and chauffeur," said the Soviet Consul. "May I give you a lift?" And he drove her home.

Lieutenant General Gregory, the Quartermaster General of the U. S. Army who just received his second Distinguished Service Medal, will be decorated this month by the British, the French and the Dutch . . . J. Henry Nealy may become the new general counsel at the Navy Department . . . Former Representative Hamilton Fish is writing a book which he will call "Challenge of World Communism" . . . One of the world's great figures is giving consideration to a radio offer for a series of Sunday night broadcasts to be beamed to all parts of the world . . . Joe Howard, coowner of the Zanzibar, entered a cab downtown to take him to W. 58th st. The cabbie started criss-crossing around the streets, instead of taking a direct route. "Hey, where are you going?" Howard asked him. The cabbie replied: "Oh, I'll get you uptown all right. But I'm also looking for an apartment."

Emil Schram, whose salary as president of the New York Stock Exchange was increased last week to $100,000 a year, was at S. N. Eben's party Saturday evening, where an investor asked him what he thought of the market's trends. "In the words of J. P. Morgan, the elder," said Schram, "it will continue to fluctuate" . . . Schram doesn't own a single share of stock listed on the exchange. Although no regulations forbid his trading, Schram sold all his holdings when he became president of the exchange. "It doesn't make any difference to me whether they go up or down," he said. "All I want to do is keep 'em honest."

Reflection by a Briton

After retakes with Maureen O'Hara, Cedric Hardwicke will leave for New York, "Pygmalion," and Gertie Lawrence. I asked why he preferred the theater. He said, "One reason is because when I see my face on the screen, it always startles me." Then he added, "Have you noticed that when you have a mess of photographs of yourself laid out in front of you, you always pick the flattering ones and hope you look like that? But the screen doesn't lie." I asked how he could afford to work in both England and America and pay two income taxes. He said, "Haven't you heard? We don't do that any more, thanks to George Bernard Shaw. Shaw found that if he kept on working and paid both taxes, it would cost him money to labor. So he just sat down and said, 'I'll work no more until this is corrected.'"

Bud Schulberg, who wrote "What Makes Sammy Run," is helping prepare films to be used as evidence against the Nazi war criminals in the Nuernberg trials. Since VE-Day, he's combed Germany for pictures made by Nazis themselves which will be used against them. His boss, incidentally, is Lieut. Ray Kellogg of the Office of Strategic Services who used to do special effects at Twentieth Century. He was chosen for this job so Nazis couldn't claim the pictures were trick photography. Ray is an expert on that sort of thing and will be under cross-examination by the Nazi defense attorneys. My cross-examination of the war criminals would have been cross-fire from a machine gun many months ago . . . Florence Prichett is going steady now with Eddie Duchin. Eddie's taking things easy for about a year before starting another band. He was one of the heroes of Iwo Jima—went in with the first group of men to clear the water of mines.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER

D. C. Church Federation Forms Business and Finance Unit

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

The Washington Federation of Churches has organized a new department of business and finance, headed by the Rev. Purcell Storey, retiring financial secretary of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

Mr. Storey, who has served Mount Vernon Place Church—the city's largest Protestant congregation—11 years, will assume his new tasks January 1 in the federation offices at 1751 N st. nw.

Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, Federation of Churches' executive secretary, in announcing the selection of Mr. Storey, declared yesterday:

"The growing cooperation among the Protestant churches in the Nation's Capital and the growing demands made upon the Federation because of the increased population have necessitated an increased budget and a new department of business and finance."

The committee for the new department comprises Dudley F. Holtman, local investment broker, as chairman, and the following members:

Mrs. O. B. Atwood, H. C. Barden, Walter W. Britt, Elton H. Brown, sr., Earl Carson, Edward H. DeGroot, Ernest W. Green, Dr. J. Warren Hastings, Edward E. Lacy, A. B. LaFleur, Norton M. Little, John W. Martin, Roy D. Voshall and Miss A. Barbara Wiegand. Britt heads the subcommittee on property, and Mrs. Atwood, the subcommittee on house.

The federation is the representative body of more than 200 Protestant churches in Washington and vicinity, with a membership of over 100,000.

Grocers Hear Attack On OPA 'Shackles'

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 14 (Spl.).—George King of Charleston, executive secretary of the West Virginia Retail Grocers Association, told members of the Tri-County Retail Grocers group here last night that the prime problem of "both the public and merchant" is to be freed from the "shackles" of OPA.

More than 100 grocers and their guests from the counties of Morgan, Jefferson and Berkeley attended the meeting held in connection with an annual dinner.

Winchester Imports Milk Due to Shortage

Winchester, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—The Winchester Cooperative Producers' Association said today that the growing scarcity of Grade A milk in this area has necessitated importing milk from other sections of the State. The organization will meet tomorrow to discuss plans for dealing with the situation.

'Weekend at Waldorf' Is a High-Voltage Hit On Screen at Palace

RECALLING—not very vaguely, one imagines—that back in 1932 they had chalked up a colossal hit with a little number called "Grand Hotel," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer palpably made up its collective mind that in this year 1945 the time has come for history to repeat itself, and on the evidence at hand they were monumentally right.

Ginger Rogers

Cut from the same pattern, "Weekend at the Waldorf," opening this morning on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, in its two hours and 10 minutes of running-time embraces everything that might reasonably be calculated to pack theaters and please audiences.

Suggested by the Vicki Baum fiction, it has been adapted by Guy Bolton and scenarized by Sam and Bella Spewack, in expanded dimensions and multiplied luxury, to present a series of dramas within a drama with a much lighter and far more agreeable touch than its star-studded predecessor.

A great deal goes on in the famous hostelry over this imaginary weekend.

A famous screen star is housed there in a palatial suite awaiting the Broadway premiere of her latest picture, and in a surprising and most unconventional way becomes humorously and romantically involved with a celebrated war correspondent.

A convalescent bomber pilot from the Pacific, with a shrapnel fragment lodged near his heart, is told he has an even chance on the operating table, if he can muster a sufficient will to live—a matter which he manages with the aid of the gorgeous blonde from the public stenographer's office.

In an adjoining regal suite, a wily operator is endeavoring to high-pressure a visiting potentate into an international oil swindle.

In still another, a self-deluded bride is on the verge of calling the whole thing off and deserting her young doctor-bridegroom, who has been treating the flier, because he happens to have been a childhood schoolmate of the movie queen and has cherished the friendship ever since.

Dovetailing De Luxe

There is a cub reporter amusingly dogging the steps of the veteran correspondent for help in running down a story he has no slimmest notion of how to get, and around the fringes of it all hovers a whimsically droll columnist, whose chief concern over the tag end of this particular week is the imminent motherhood of his pet cocker spaniel—but who finds time in between his calls to the Bide-a-Wee Home to comment cogently upon the completeness with which life, human relationships and Fate's capricious tricks are spun out within the walls of so fabulous a pile as the Park ave. hospice.

While these divergent themes are pursued individually, and none is ever lost or unduly submerged, all are blended into a remarkably effective mosaic of lavish living—sometimes by merest coincidence, again by the normal activities and common interests of the characters involved.

The more important of these characters are portrayed by a stellar cast, any one of whom might be relied upon alone to lend luster to any top-grade film and magnetize its box office.

Ginger Rogers, as Irene Malvern, the cinema star who lives only for the cameras, and Walter Pidgeon, the tired correspondent who settles for romance instead of the rest he hoped to get, lend their segment of the multiple story a breezy and sophisticated humor that is as diverting as the extravagantly fantastic manner of their meeting.

Listen to the Heart Throbs!

Van Johnson, the Capt. James Hollis, and Lana Turner, whose duties as the hotel's favorite stenographer lay her liable to the lures of Martin Edley, who paints his doodles in oil, pursue their attachment with youthful seriousness and warmth, to the high advantage of the picture's contrasts and the presumable palpitation of the more susceptible romanticists among their idolators.

Mr. Edley is etched with suave and sinister skill, and occasional touches of humor by Edward Arnold, with George Zucco in the role of the Oxonian Bey, who pretends neither to speak nor understand English. As first aid to his fraudulence, Mr. Arnold has Porter Hall, who can be a pretty slippery fellow on his own account, and as principal antagonist, Samuel S. Hinds, as a symbol of reputable wealth and power.

The brightest comedy spots in the picture are touched up by the lively talents of Keenan Wynn, the cub reporter who lands on his feet and the front page in spite of himself.

In Miss Rogers' entourage will be found Leon Ames, as a manager with a single-track mind, and Irving Bacon, a public relations man with a penchant for prodigious press parties.

Musical Spectacle Added

Collaborating with Master Wynn in the creation of the action's more laughable moments, Robert Benchley makes the most of the columnist's small part in the proceedings and acts also as narrator when it seems expedient to emphasize the Waldorf's potentialities in the shaping of human destiny.

Since entertainment of its guests is not the least of the hotel's responsibilities, the scripters have arranged to assemble the foremost figures in their fable on the Starlight Roof to hear Xavier Cugat and his orchestra, featuring Lina Romay, his exotic songstress, and a Latin-America vocal ensemble and marimba band in a musical production number that would make a superlative short reel subject all by itself.

The manifold ramifications of this far-flung fable have been directed by Robert Z. Leonard with a fine eye to detail, a gold-plated sense of the luxurious profligacy of a walled-in lotus land, and only an occasional lag in the action in the interest of display.

The cameraman—and I regret that his identity seems to have eluded me—has turned in a gem of a job.

"Wild and Woolsy," a cartoon comedy, and the picturized "News of the Day" are the only screen auxiliaries of the new bill at the Palace and they are strictly nonessentials in conjunction with a major feature which, as we were saying, "has everything."

Frederick Man Gets Five Years in Assault

Frederick, Md., Nov. 14 (Spl.).—Fred G. Shepley, this city, was sentenced to five years in the House of Correction today by Associate Judge Patrick M. Schnauffer on an indictment charging him with assault with intent to carnally know and abuse his 13-year-old stepdaughter. The court told Shepley that he should consider himself fortunate that he was not charged with rape.

Senate Group Charges Swiss Collaborated on Nazi Assets

By the United Press

A Senate Military Affairs Subcommittee charged last night that Swiss government and banking officials collaborated in a Nazi attempt to preserve German economic assets for another try at world domination.

It released four letters written from Switzerland in the early part of this year by Emil Puhl, former vice president of the Reichsbank, to Dr. Walter Funk, Reichsbank president and German minister of economics. Funk is under indictment as a Nazi war criminal.

The Germans sent Puhl to Switzerland to nullify the work of an Allied mission, headed by Lauchlin Currie, personal representative of the late President Roosevelt.

Obtained Agreement

Currie obtained from the Swiss government an agreement that it would immobilize all German assets in Switzerland, but Puhl reported to Funk on April 6 that the "absolute stopping of payments between Germany and Switzerland which our opponents tried to obtain did not materialize."

Chairman Harley M. Kilgore, (D., W. Va.) of the subcommittee on elimination of German resources for war, said the Puhl-Funk correspondence "makes it clear that the principal concern of the Swiss was the prospect of future business dealings with a postwar Germany, irrespective of its political character and its relationship to the peace and freedom-loving nations of the world."

"Despite the efforts of the Currie mission and the assurances of the Swiss government that German accounts would be blocked," he said, "the Germans maneuvered themselves back into a position where they could utilize their assets in Switzerland to support their war effort, could acquire desperately needed foreign exchange by the sale of looted gold, and could conceal economic reserves for another war.

"These moves were made possible by the willingness of Swiss government and banking officials, in violation of their agreement with the Allied powers, to make a secret deal with the Nazis."

Kilgore said that German assets in Switzerland and other neutral countries must be seized in order to destroy Germany's economic potential for another war and to rehabilitate nations which were victims of German attack. He said that United Nations collaboration was necessary to carry out such action.

Puhl, who went to Switzerland even as Allied armies were sweeping across Germany, reported to Funk when he first arrived that it looked as if Swiss authorities would accede to Allied demands that Nazi assets be frozen.

Sympathetically Received

He said, however, that he was urged to continue his "endeavors" by President (Ernest) Weber of the Swiss Nationalbank, who pointed out that "Under the given present-day conditions, an agreement between the Nationalbank and the Reichsbank would be of far reaching importance beyond the present day."

Puhl wrote that he was received sympathetically by Swiss bankers and government officials and "in the last analysis found much understanding from the Swiss side."

Painful Chapping

Quickly Relieved

It's one thing to keep your skin smooth with beautifying creams and lotions but when skin is painfully chapped, what you need is medicated Ice-Mint. Snowy-white — pleasant to use — Ice-Mint brings instant comfort — cools burning irritation quickly, while its medications relieve raw, cracked surfaces. So when winter breezes chap your face, hands or lips — don't wait — get Ice-Mint. At drug and department stores.

When HEAD COLD miseries make you a night owl . . .

When a stopped-up nose due to colds makes it hard to breathe . . . get Mistol Drops with Ephedrine. A little in each nostril temporarily contracts swollen membranes . . . helps you to breathe easier and therefore sleep better.

An Important Announcement from EMBASSY DAIRY

As Washington's largest independent dairy we feel it our duty to clarify confusion which exists in the public mind regarding Embassy Dairy milk deliveries.

During the critical milk shortage existing nationally Embassy Dairy HAS NOT and IS NOT NOW curtailing ANY deliveries, retail or wholesale, to ANY customers.

The future cannot always be foreseen, and to make promises which may or may NOT be kept is poor business faith and principle. However, we want to assure all of our customers that every effort is being made and will be made in the future to continue our present schedule and quota of delivery.

Embassy Dairy is NOT now rationing milk.

John J. McCloy Resigns Post Of Assistant War Secretary

President Truman yesterday accepted the resignation of John J. McCloy, assistant Secretary of War, effective November 24.

The White House made public an exchange of letters in which the President expressed his "very great regret" on having to let McCloy go.

McCloy offered his resignation September . . , with the retirement of Henry L. Stimson as Secretary of War, but the President refused to accept it at that time.

The resignation of Robert Lovett, another assistant Secretary of War, offered at the same time, has not been acted upon.

McCloy recently returned from a mission to the European and Pacific theaters, undertaken in connection with occupation problems.

McCloy, 50-year-old former New York attorney, came to Washington on October 5, 1940 as an expert consultant to Stimson. He was named assistant secretary on April 22, 1941.

William D. Hassett, presidential secretary, told a news conference he did not know when McCloy's successor would be named.

"For all that you did," the President wrote McCloy, "in effecting the reorganization of the War Department; in maintaing a cooperative relationship with the Department of State; in the development of lend-lease; in framing the regulations for military government for countries occupied by our armies and in your valued counsels in the plans for the tiral of the war criminals you have earned the thanks of the Nation."

Wheeler Flays Slow Releases Of Army, Navy

By the Associated Press

Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) touched off criticism of the Army and Navy demobilization programs in the Senate yesterday with a suggestion that Congress should "take some action to speed this up."

Half a dozen Senators joined Wheeler's verbal complaint.

Senator Reed (R., Kans.) declared the Army is holding 10,000 unneeded doctors and dentists in what Reed termed a "disgraceful situation."

"The admirals and generals tell us everything is going smoothly but these boys stuck in the Pacific, China and Europe are not satisfied by such explanations," Wheeler told the Senate.

Earlier Maj. Gen. Willard S. Paul, new Army chief of personnel, had told the Senate Naval Affairs Committee that demobilization is going ahead in an orderly fashion. He said the biggest help Congress could give would be to refrain from applying pressure to speed the discharge of individuals or small groups.

Army Air Forces announced, meanwhile, it will discharge about 4000 air crew trainees who have had two years or Army service and are no longer needed.

They are enlisted men who transferred from other branches of the Army to air forces for crew training. Previously, AAF had provided for release of air students who volunteered from civilian life.

The order classes as surplus, and eligible for discharge, all trainees who volunteered from enlisted status, who have completed two years service between September 16, 1940, and November 9, 1945, who have not volunteered to remain in the service.

Flattop off for Yanks

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—The 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Randolph, second flattop outfited as a troop transport to expedite redeployment of American troops from the European Theater, will sail late tonight for Naples with 768 Italian prisoners of war aboard as passengers.

A spokesman for the ship said she was to bring home 6500 Army passengers—6000 troops and 500 officers—on the return voyage.

KING
BLENDED WHISKY

Only a name superlative as "King," could describe the LIGHT full King Black Label Whisky! In fine clubs and bars—and at home—more and more discriminating people enjoy Brown-Forman's King of pre-war whisky—so light, so mellow, and yet so full-flavored and satisfying. Labor Troubles Close Flint Buick and Fisher Body Plants

Automobile production, generally unhampered by labor troubles during the current wage negotiations, was reduced yesterday by the halting of Buick and Fisher body assembly in Flint, Mich.

General Motors attributed the cutoff of production to a parts shortage arising from a two-week "work stoppage" by CIO United Automobile Workers in Cleveland, but the union denied this.

The shutdown in operations, affecting an estimated 5000 workers, and continuing labor troubles elsewhere placed at 275,000 the number of persons away from their jobs over the Nation.

GM said the "stoppage" at the Midland Steel Products Co. Cleveland, had forced GM to halt Buick production for lack of chassis frames. In Cleveland the UAW replied there was no strike at Midland but that the company had discharged 200 workers two weeks ago because the company "didn't like the amount of production." The union said 1000 men still were at work.

Midland Strike Denied

The Midland President, E. J. Kulas, asserted a "slowdown" began among employes when the company started reconversion and a wage increase October 10 did not halt it.

Buick's general manager said "supply problems due to strikes" had hampered Buick production "continuously since reconversion." He said output had reached 225 cars daily and was accelerating until the supply of frames from Midland ebbed.

Salaries Increased

General Motors' announcement of wage increases for salaried employes evoked from R. J. Thomas, UAW president, the comment that they "would have gotten a better break if they had been more thoroughly organized."

The company granted a ten per cent increase in pay on the first $500 of monthly salary retroactive to November 1. The UAW is seeking a 30 per cent wage rate increase for its members, principally production personnel. It has rejected an offer of cost-of-living adjustments.

In Stamford, Conn., AFL strikers rebuffed an attempt of 50 police officers to crash their picket line at the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company. Management and clerical workers were trying to enter the plant without union passes for the first time.

Bus Strike Continues

In other industries these situations prevailed:

Transportation — AFL strike on Greyhound lines in 27 States continues.

Lumber — 60,000 AFL lumber workers still out in Pacific northwest.

Machinists—60,000 continue inactive in San Francisco Bay area plants because of AFL-CIO machinists' wage dispute.

Midland Strike Forces Closing of Fisher Body Plant

Flint, Mich., Nov. 14 (U.P.)—Workers on the midnight shift at the Fisher Body plant here were sent home and the plant stopped production, it was learned early tody. At the same time, it was said that Buick assembly lines may be forced to close by noon because of a reported strike at Midland Steel Co. plants in Cleveland.

There was no official announcement on the closing of the body plant, which is a key supplier for Buick in the General Motors Corp. setup. Neither was there any comment from the Buick Co. However, reliable sources close to management confirmed that the Buick shutdown was imminent.

The stopping of production at both plants would be the result of the lack of steel body frames normally supplied by the Cleveland firm, it was said.

2 Jehovah Witnesses' Youths Get 3 Years for Draft Evasion

Two Fairfax County members of the Jehovah's Witnesses yesterday were sentenced to three years in prison after pleading no defense to draft evasion charges before Federal Judge Robert N. Pollard at Alexandria.

A third member of the sect from Savannah, Ga., Robert Evans Poole, 24, won a plea for a jury trial in the Alexandria Court on a charge of escaping from a civilian public service camp where some conscientious objectors were quartered. Poole denied, however, that he was a conscientious objector.

Failed to Heed Call

The two Fairfax County youths were Harold Stanley Barker, 19, and Irvin Makely DeBusk, 18, both of Route 3. They told the court they failed to respond to induction calls because, as ministers, they were opposed to bearing arms. Barker was to have reported for induction May 24. DeBusk, who claimed he was ordained in 1939 at the age of 11, was called for induction July 31.

The Georgia man told Judge Pollard he was wrongfully classified as a conscientious objector instead of a minister and that he fled the camp June 5 for that reason.

Judge Pollard presided at the one-day session of the United States District Court for the eastern district of Virginia.

Two Cases Postponed

Carried over for trial at the opening of the December term of the court Monday, December 4, were charges of vialation of the Federal Securities and Exchange Act against Benjamin R. Ditto, sr., of Wellington Station, Fairfax County, who has offices at 2101 K st. nw., Washington, and Herman L. Schuh, now of Ashburn, Loudoun County, Va., who formerly had offices in the Southern Building in Washington.

They are accused of fraudulent transactions between 1940 and 1942 in which they charged with influencing Mrs. Mary M. Graham, 75, and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Ross, 78, widows of Atlanta, Ga., to give up $50,000 worth of miscellaneous securities, $4000 in Government bonds, $5000 in cash, and $23,000 worth of real estate.

In return, according to the Securities Exchange Commission, the women received worthless securities, some of which were those of the "Whippoorwill Gas Co." of Maryland in which Ditto and Schuh are listed as directors.

Both were released under $3000 bond each July 9 following their indictment by a Federal grand jury in Richmond July 5.

30 Churches in Presbytery Plan 2-Day Faith Conference

Delegates from approximately 30 churches in the Potomac Presbytery will attend the two-day "Faith and Action Conference" in Alexandria Saturday and Sunday;. The metropolitan area of Washington and nearby Virginia and Maryland comprise the Presbytery.

The sessions for church leaders and lay members, also open to the public, will be at the Second Presbyterian Church, Prince and South St. Asaph sts. Principal speaker will be the Rev. Walter R. Courtenary, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Nashville, Tenn.

Serving on the committee in charge of arrangements for the Second Church are: Frank P. Wilson, chairman; Robert G. Whitton, R. Clifford Hall, Thomas C. Graham, Mrs. Stephen Field and Miss Edna Helm. The Rev. E. Summers McGavock of Lucketts, Va., is moderator of the Potomac Presbytery.

Activities will begin Saturday at 6 p. m. with a dinner in the Westminster Building of the church for 275 persons.

Dr. Courtenay will speak at 8 p. m., when the worship will be conducted by Mr. Poag, with the Rev. T. K. Currie, director of religious education for the Virginia Synod, taking part.

Frederick to See Goering Limousine

Frederick, Md., Nov. 14 (Spl.).—Reichsmarshal Herman Goering's four-ton bullet-proof limousine will be displayed here for three hours the night of November 20 in connection with the Victory Loan drive, it was announced today. The car, in charge of Sergt. Joe Azara, who captured the vehicle at Laufen, Germany, will be towed to Frederick from Westminster.

60,000 Radio 'Hams' to Wait Up Tonight for FCC 'Go' Signal

West Hartford, Conn., Nov. 14 (U.P.).—The Nation's 60,000 radio "hams" will sit up late tonight to await the return of three bands of frequencies to be released for their use by the Federal Communications Commission at 3 a. m (EST) tomorrow.

Kenneth B. Warner, secretary of the American Radio Relay League, said the amateur radio operators will be able to use the 28,000-kilocycle band for international conversations.

Many amateurs "will be looking forward to renewing international friendships," Warner said.

Other bands restored for amateur use are the 56-60 megacycle which will be shifted to 50-54 megacycles March 1, and a 144-148 megacycle band.

OPA Postpones Dealer Hearings 4th Month in Row

District OPA hearings were postponed yesterday—for the fourth consecutive month—against nine food and three shoe dealers.

Robert K. Thompson, District OPA administrator, explained that illness of Hearing Commissioner Clifford R. Snider had forced the postponement.

Snider's illness also was given as the reason for postponement of September hearings against the same dealers. Hearings were called off in August and October because of vacations of lawyers and witnesses, out-of-town business trips, and various illnesses of other persons.

Thompson said hearings will "definitely be held as soon as the commissioner gets well," without waiting for a regular hearing day next month.

Senators Asked To Approve Funds For Child Centers

The Senate was urged by its appropriations committee yesterday to go along with the House and approve continued use by the Federal Works Agency of funds to keep the wartime child care centers in operation to March 1. The House allocated $5,415,000 for this purpose in the so-called rescission bill.

Twenty-two centers are located in the District. Others scattered throughout the country, total about 2000.

FWA had planned to close all of the centers October 31, but a Nation-wide protest by mothers resulted in President Truman recommending to Congress that they be allowed to continue four months.

Transit Co. to Get 20 0New Buses

A fleet of 20 new buses, costing $260,000, will be added to the Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington Transit Co. system early next month, it was announced yesterday by transit company officials.

Currently five company officials are in Allentown, Pa., at the Mack Manufacturing Co., to speed delivery of the buses.

The company also disclosed that it had ordered 25 additional buses for delivery next spring.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Those original exponents of the T-formation, the Chicago Bears, now qualify as Exhibit A in evidence that the T per se (hot diggety!) is no guarantee of success on the football field. It helps a lot if you also happen to have some good football players; in fact, it's quite necessary.

POVICH

The Bears were the first team, professional or collegiate, to adopt the T-formation, and it was their success that popularized the T. The Bears' coaches are better steeped in the intricacies of T-formation football than any other coaching staff and can't plead unfamiliarity, but look at the Bears this season. They've lost seven of their eight league starts, with their ninth coming up against the Redskins on Sunday.

What's most amazing about the sad estate of the Bears is the fact that they've scored only 57 points in eight games, or an average of one touchdown per afternoon. The T is supposed to develop scoring power. The Bears used to score 57 points in one contest and surprise nobody. In fact, they've run up 73 points on occasion, against an Eastern Division title winner.

The Bears still have their T-formation, but they are the most punchless club in the league. In fact, they scored only 29 points in their first seven games of the season. Apparently the T-formation isn't the answer to winning football. There's still no substitute for good football players whether they play the T-formation, the single wing, the double wing or any style of a coach's choosing.

Of the T-formation's value when the right type of players are available to man it, there is no doubt. The merits of the T are being displayed weekly by the Redskins, the Eagles and the Cleveland Rams, all of whom are now exponents of it. The Bears have bogged down because they no longer have such as Bill McAfee, Norm Standlee, Joe Maniaci and Bill Osmanski to make it go.

The T-formation in itself never did hold any terrors for Ray Flaherty when he was coaching the Redskins, or for Steve Owen, the Giants' coach, or Gus Dorais of the Detroit Lions. Dorais made perhaps the most reasonable observation when he pointed out "last season, only three teams in the league didn't use the T, and two of them —the Packers and the Giants—were in the playoff for the title.

The Redskins had a better starting backfield in 1937 when they won their first league title than they now own, but never were they so deep in good backs as this season. The quartet of Sammy Baugh, Cliff Battles, Riley Smith and Ernie Pinckert could be rated better than any four backs Dud De Groot can put on the field, but De Groot has more good backs at his command than any coach in the league.

We can quickly count ten Redskin backs who would be regulars in any other backfield in the league. After counting Baugh as a man apart, it's difficult to separate most of the others. Frank Akins is the plunging back of the group, but who is there to say that he's a better back than Merlyn Condit, the Redskins' recent acquisition. The league's coaches who have seen more of Condit than Akins would probably vote for the former.

Our pet back on the Redskins is Bob Seymour who strangely hasn't been getting the heavy duty this year. The fact is that Seymour is Sammy Baugh's favorite line-hitting back, too, but the Redskins' coaches have given Baugh little opportunity to use Seymour this season.

And when a team comes up with a fast back like Steve Bagarus, that team is lucky. The Redskins, however, are shot through with luck in that respect, because they have Bagarus and Dick Todd. They're of a type, with Todd the better defensive man. In fact, Coach Steve Owen of the Giants says: "I'd like to have Todd and I'd be satisfied to use him on only one kind of play—covering Bagarus on those flanker passes Baugh throws."

The threat of Bagarus' speed is so great that the Giants and other clubs are virtually conceding him a 10-yard gain on those flanker passes from Baugh. "We had to play him loose because we were always afraid he'd streak behind our defense," said Owen. "He's dynamite."

Covering Bagarus is getting to be as much of a major problem for the league teams as covering Don Hutson, the pass-hungry end of the Packers. Speaking of defensive talents, Hutson always did say that the man who does the best job of covering him on passes is Wilbur Moore of the Redskins.

Redskins Are Favored Over Bears

By Al Costello
Post Staff Writer

Those Chicago Bears, who used to couple brute strength with "T" magic and finesse to overpower everything and everybody in the pro football world a couple of years ago now find the tables reversed as they come here Sunday for their head-on clash with the championship flirting Redskins.

The Redskins, always the underdog in every game without exception since 1937, today find themselves in the decidedly new role of favorites. The Bears have won but one game, are eliminated from Western Division title honors and can hope to "rescue" their entire season only by knocking off their hated and heated Eastern Division rivals just as they did the Packers out of the Western fight Sunday before last.

The early line has established the Redskins seven-point favorites.

Rosato Back to Action

Further, Redskin Coach Dud DeGroot received a bit of welcome news yesterday when Dr. Robert (Pete) Moran pronounced Sal (Old Sarge) Rosato, a heavy plunging fullback who usually relieves Frank Atkins on the offense, as fit and ready for heavy duty once more after a knee injury received in the Eagle game three weeks ago.

Rosato, a former Villanova star when "Clipper" Smith's teams were riding high, wide and handsome, hurt his knee while smashing the sturdy Eagle line for the Redskins' first touchdown in their 24-14 upset triumph over the Philadelphians and was forced to miss the Giant, Cardinal and Yank games.

Crack Linebacker

Rosato also is one of the club's best linebackers and adds further strength in the Redskin secondary as reinforcement for Cece Hare, Marvin Whited, Leo Pressley, Ki Aldrich and Al DeMao. Rosta gives the locals half-dozen crack line-backers who will give any team's running attack a case of fits.

Now the Bears are underdogs, facing a heavy and capable team that boasts a fine running attack and an air game presided over by Sammy Baugh in the famed "T" that the Bears themselves made famous.

Maybe they'll begin to understand now how their opponents of a few years ago felt.

Official league averages released yesterday reveal Baugh still leads the league in pass efficiency with 86 completions in 121 attempts for 1102 yards, including six touchdown passes, for an average of 71 per cent. Sid Luckman is second with a 53.1 average, but has gained 1129 yards in 77 completions in 145 attempts, seven for touches.

Redskin Frank Akins dropped to second place in the leading ground gaining department with 456 yards, four less than Philadelphia's will o' the wisp, Steve Van Buren. Akins' average is 5 yards per rush, compared to the 6.6 figure compiled by Van Buren.

Steve Bagarus continues in second place in pass catching behind Green Bay's Don Hutson with 26. Hutson has 37, eight for touchdowns, one more than Philadelphia's sensational end, Jack Ferrante, who has scored seven touchdowns by accepting aerials. Joe Aguirre moved to second place among the field goal kickers with five, one behind the Giants' Ken Strong, who has half-dozen to his credit.

Sammy Baugh continues to lead the punters with a 44.3 yard average.

Janiro and Zavala Meet

New York, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Tony Janiro of Youngstown, Ohio, and Humberto Zavala of Mexico City were signed today for an eight-round lightweight bout at Madison Square Gardan December 21.

Penn's Bob Evans Gives Credit to a 'Terrific' Line

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Marine Capt. Bob Evans, grid official and former Ursinus (Pa.) college star, gives some little-needed passing tips to his son, Penn's young sensation who will be a sparkplug against Army Saturday. Young Bob has completed 24 of 44 tosses this year, 10 of them for touchdowns.

Uclans, Gaels To Battle for Rose Bowl Bid

Los Angeles, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—The Bruins of the University of California at Los Angeles are primed to upset St. Mary's flashy, undefeated Gaels Saturday and march right into Rose Bowl contention along with their crosstown rivals, the Southern California Trojans.

Both the Trojans and the Bruins backed into the limelight last week as Washington was toppled from the Pacific Coast Conference lead by Oregon State.

Now the pressure is really on. Finding themselves in the leading roles, both the Trojans and Bruins hope to win their remaining games and make their December 1 return meeting the "Battle for the Roses."

The Trojans are idle Saturday but meet Oregon State next week. The Bruins have California to beat after their joust with St. Mary's.

But St. Mary's, prominently mentioned for Rose Bowl consideration is the Bruins' No. 1 problem. The Gaels have rolled over seven straight opponents, 262 points to 19. Their razzle dazzle completely befuddled Southern California two weeks ago, 26-0.

Incidentally, the Gaels-for-Rose-Bowl talk has subsided here, now that the local schools have the inside track. But win, lose or draw Saturday, Jimmy Phelan's kids appear almost certain to be somebody's Bowl babies January 1.

It's not that easy for the Bruins. Their record already is marred by two defeats in six games. They lost to the Trojans and to St. Mary's pre-flight, both 13-6. Another loss would be a blow to Bruin prestige even should UCLA win its remaining conference games and technically earn the Rose Bowl bid.

For consolation, the Bruins can point to the Trojans, who have lost three games.

Coach Bert La Brucherie, aided by the long break in the schedule, has his scrappy Bruins in top physical and mental shape. The Bruins think they can whip St. Mary's, and that may be half the battle.

UCLA's chances of winning hinge largely on how well Freshman Skip Rowland can fill the shoes of rugged Right Halfback Cal Rossi, the Bruin bellwether who was transferred by the Navy recently.

Soph Aerial Artist Called Quakers' Greatest Since 1928; Dad Comes In for Some Credit

Philadelphia, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Touchdown tossin' Bob Evans of Pennsylvania's potent football eleven credits the Quakers' big 200-pound line for his impressive aerial record.

"Who wouldn't hit a receiver if he has all afternoon to pass as I have?" Evans said. "That line of ours is terrific."

That line has been a big help, but Coach George Munger doesn't believe any credit should be taken away from Evans, rated the best Penn passer since Johnny Shober flipped them in 1928.

Evans has completed 24 of 44 passes for a 55 per cent average. His passes have covered 373 yards and 10 went for touchdowns.

Can't Beat It

"That's sharp passing in any league," commented Munger.

Evans is a sophomore, having rejoined the Quakers after service as a waist-gunner over Europe. He won the Distinguished Flying Cross for aerial excellence in 33 military missions.

But he's not only a passer. His boombing picks—especially the quick ones—have rocked opponents on numerous occasions. Most notable was a 78-yard quick kick against Navy. The ball rolled dead on the Middies' 2-yard line.

The modest halback would like to shift some of the credit heaped on him in newspaper accounts to his dad, Marine Capt. Bob Evans, one time Ursinus College star fullback.

Played Catch

Captain Evans said "since he was this (thigh) high and about 5 years old, Bob and I have played catch with footballs and baseballs in our back yard."

"But," he added, "I brag about only one thing. I've never meddled with his coaches or second guessed them."

Evans will get a chance Saturday to toss against the Nation's number one team — Army — at Franklin Field.

Army Coaches Fret About Psychology

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Army's coaching staff, more worried by the psychology of their own team than the threat posed by Penn for Saturday's game, bore down again today with a stiff contact drill.

Much attention was paid to pass defense, with Coach Earl Blaik warning his team that Penn's Bob Evans is one of the best passers on the gridiron today. Blaik banned talk of the Navy game on December 1, telling his gridders to concentrate on the Penn game.

The team came through the Notre Dame game with no injuries and attention centered on battles between Tom McWilliams and Bob Stuart for the right halfback post and between Dick Pitzer and Barney Poole for a starting end job.

7-Horse Field In 'Special' At Pimlico

Baltimore, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—First Fiddle, the star of Mrs. Eddie Mulrennan's Stable, finally arrived at Pimlico today, apparently assuring a field of seven of the year's leading thoroughbreds for the ninth running of the Pimlico Special Saturday.

Right now it looks like the Calumet Farm's pair of Armed and Pot O'Luck will go to the post the favorites in this winner-take-all $25,000 sporting classic, with First Fiddle and Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' stretch-running Stymie next in line.

This will be the largest field for the Special since Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, then president of Pimlico's operator, the Maryland Jockey Club, inaugurated the "invitation only" affair in 1937 and Calumet will be shooting for a second straight. Last fall, the fleet filly, Twilight Tear, brought home the bacon for Owner Warren Wright of Chicago and her famous trainer, Ben Jones.

Jones had a look today at one of his chief rivals, Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's Polynesian, victor in last summer's Preakness, and Polynesian didn't fail his backers in the betting ring. The 3-year-old son of Unbreakable won the first division of the 6-furlong Reisterstown Handicap in a driving finish, scoring a head triumph over Morris Wexler's British Buddy in 1.12 3/5. Wayne Wright, the Idaho boy who piloted Polynesian to his Preakness glory, was aboard today and will be up again Saturday for the mile and three sixteenths race.

$53.20 Shot 'Rock' Winner

Salem, N. H., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Pinehurst Stable's 25-1 shot, Rotamal, won the $2500 Sister Kenny Foundation Purse today at Rockingham Park after taking command at the head of the stretch.

Ford and Block's Sal's Sister was second, and Sid Bernstein's Link was third time for 1-16 event over a muddy track was 1:51.

Rotamal paid $53.20, $24.60 and $8.80. Sal's Sister returned $9.00 and $4.40 and Link $3.60.

A substantial sum was realized for the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Endowment and Education Fund, recipient of the day's profits.

The annual Rockingham Park cow girl classic for girl riders from the rodeo appearing in Boston, was won by Jerry Ann Portwood on ePcos with Tad Lucas, riding Indian Sign, in the second position and Fay Kirkwood on Joe Jr. finishing third.

Count Speed Scores Easily At Jamaica

Jamaica Racetrack, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Scoring in much the same fashion as his illustrious older brother Count Fleet used to do, Mrs. John D. Hertz' Count Speed today met his stiffest assignment to date and came through with a smashing four lengths victory in the $10,000 added, mile and 70 yard Midway Handicap.

This event, which featured the penultimate program of the New York turf season, saw the bay son of Reigh Count-Quickly answering three important questions. It was his first race at more than 6 furlongs; his initial essay against horses with some class, and was supposed to determine whether he rated a chance to run in the rich Pimlico Futurity. The steadily improving goungster came through with flying colors on all three counts.

Miss Mary Jane O'Leary's lightly played Buddie Bones surprised by earning the place by a half length over the Wheatley Stable's Wakefield Stakes victor, Misleader, a colt which ran Star Pilot to a head i nthe recent Ardsley Tandicap. Eight juveniles ran in the Midway, with Count Speed the public choice at odds of 9 to 10.

Although intermittent showers fell, a crowd of 22,310, which put over four favorites in the first five events decided, was on hand to see Count Speed chalk up his fourth straight triumph. The Hertz homebred failed in his first two outings, but has scored impressively ever since, indicating that if he continues to improve he may become a good stakes winner, if not the equal of his famous brother.

The bounding bay completed his journey over a sloppy track in the good time of 1:44 1/5 under 119 pounds, second only to the 122 on Misleader. He added $6660 to his previous earnings of $6320.

V.M.I.'s Defenses Primed for Tribe

Lexington, Va., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Rain drove the Virginia Military Institute football team indoors today and cramped quarters limited activities to a short scrimmage and a defensive brush-up as Cadets pushed preparations for the game here Saturday with the Catawba Indians from Salisbury, N. C. Several players still are nursing injuries received in the game last week with Maryland and Trainer Herb Patchin is not sure whether all will be in condition for the Catawba clash.

Coach Pooley Hubert plans to concentrate on defensive drills the remainder of the week in preparation for Catawba, which has lost only to Richmond so far this season. He also will give attention to grooming reserves, anticipating their need against the Tribe from Tar Heella.

Navy Will Decline Orange Bowl Bid, Says Miami Paper

Miami, Fla., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—The Miami Daily News said today that Vice Admiral Aubrey Fitch, commandant at the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, will issue a statement within the next day or two definitely rejecting any postseason or bowl football game for the Middies.

The news said that Admiral Fitch told Representative Pat Cannon of Miami yesterday that he would "recommend against Navy participation in any game after the Army game, December 1."

Orange Bowl officials had approached Navy authorities in an effort to win permission for the Middies to play in the New Year's Day classic at Miami.

"Such a participation would disrupt an already difficult scholastic routine," the newspaper said Admiral Fitch told Cannon. "The curriculum was compressed from four years to three during the war and the academy is now in the process of reconverting to four."

Jacksonville Golf

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 14 (U.P.).—The second annual Jacksonville Open golf tournament was scheduled today for March 14-17 with the prize money raised to $7500. The first tournament was won by Sam Snead and the purses totaled only $5000.

Postscripts . . .

Burt Bell, who with the colorful Art Rooney, owns and bosses the Pittsburgh Steelers, has drawn up a revolving two-year schedule for the National Football League for 1946 and '47 with six teams in the East and five in the West, which will be the setup when Boston and Brooklyn's merger automatically disintegrates after this year. The schedule calls for each team in the league to play every club once and a home game with one club (different each year) in each team's division. Bell said most NFL club owners like the plan and expects it to be adopted at the annual league meeting in January . . . Ray Arcel, one of the fight game's most successful trainers (trained Benny Leonard and a flock of others) was in town the other day on business far off Sock st. Incidentally, Ray has trained 11 fighters for bouts with Joe Louis. Score: Louis, 11; Arcel, 0! . . . Are Johnny Baker, former George Washington football coach in 1942 after Bill Reinhart entered the Navy, and Comdr. Max Parrington, GW's director of athletics at the time, feuding at present over the Colonials' plans for reentering the football world, tentatively scheduled next fall? . . . Speaking of Reinhart, one of his assistants coaching the Fleet City Bluejackets at Shoemaker Field, Calif., is Jack Malevich, former Catholic University football star and heavyweight boxer back in 1929, as well as Jim Barber, the Redskins' all-league tackle of several years ago. Jim's younger brother, Ernie, who tried out with the Redskins and was sold to the New York Giants a couple of weeks ago, asked for and received his release from "Stout Steve" Owen, Giant coach, to enter private business in his native San Francisco . . . The Chicago Cardinals yesterday asked waivers on Larry (Little Rat) Fuller, a Redskin of last year, who was sold to the Chicagoans this fall.

18 Players Drill for 1945-46 Play

After a two-year layoff, and despite a recent announcement to the contrary, George Washington University will resume intercollegiate basketball competition this winter, it was revealed yesterday by President Cloyd H. Marvin.

Informal practice sessions for Southern Conference play already have been started under the coaching of Arthur (Otts) Zahn, who led the Colonels to a Southern Conference title in their last year of action, 1943. Approximately 18 players have answered the call for practice.

Only one member of the squad that blasted Duke in the Southern Conference final in 1943 is now available to Zahn. He is Ted (Laddie) Reichwein, lanky Pennsylvania boy who saw a tour of Marine Corps duty after subbing on the Colonials' last club.

Return Follows Student Drive

The Colonials' return to intercollegiate sports follows a student drive in which a referendum found undergraduates in favor of sports at the downtown school, 1200 to 12.

In returning to court action GWU will arrange an unambitious schedule—in keeping with the material on hand—to be released in several weeks. It will include 10 or 12 Southern Conference foes, headed by Maryland, and renewals of relationships with Georgetown and Virginia are sought. Three games with service teams probably will complete the schedule.

Missing, for this season at least, will be the attractive intersectional games with teams such as Oklahoma, Minnesota, Loyola of Chicago, Indiana, Ohio State and Kansas State. It was with such quintets on the schedule that the Colonials ran up their brilliant 1942-43 record of 17 won and only 6 lost.

Zahn Brief on Comment

Despite his lack of tested material, Zahn, who coached GW freshman teams for seven years before taking over the varsity in 1942, is not too pessimistic about the outlook. His brief comment was:

"I think we'll have a fair team."

If the Colonials' record for the last eight years means anything, he may be right. In that period they have won a total of 116 games against 44 defeats for a percentage of .726.

Tars Work Out For Wisconsin, Stress Defense

Annapolis, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Head Coach Oscar Hagberg, trying to keep his Navy football team in top mental condition for the Wisconsin game at Baltimore Saturday, sent his players through a hard scrimmage today, concentrating on defense.

Hagberg admitted his eleven should defeat the subpar Badgers easily, but worried about a possible upset should Navy be overconfident.

Bruce Smith probably will stay in as starting quarterback and Tony Minisi as right halfback, Hagberg said, but both Bob Hoernschemeyer and Bob Kelly will see a lot of action. Smith and Minisi started last week's game against Michigan, in which the powerful Middies finally coordinated their attack and rolled to the sort of score—33 to 7—which had been expected but not achieved previously.

No 'Specials' to Army-Navy Game

Baltimore, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—There won't be any special trains to Philadelphia from Baltimore and Washington on December 1—the date of the Army-Navy football game.

In a joint announcement, the Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroads said that "we sincerely regret to convey this news, but the blunt fact is that demobilization still 'tops' a football game, even when it's Army vs. Navy."

The railroads said that regular trains on that date "cannot begin to accommodate both the normally heavy week end travel and football ticket hohlders, and that riders that day would "probably have to stand or even have difficulty board trains."

Rain Forces Lee Gridders Indoors

Camp Lee, Va., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Rainy weather forced Coach Hooks Mylin's Camp Lee football squad indoors today to prepare for its return meeting with the Bainbridge Commodores here Saturday.

Despite the weather, Mylin took full advantage of the time to conduct a lengthy blackboard drill. The Travelers studied Bainbridge plays and scouting reports.

Hooks seeks a suitable defense to stop the Commodores' quick breaking T-formation offense, which accounted for three first-period scores in the initial meeting and paced Bainbridge to a 27-0 victory.

Game Abundant In Maryland County

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—J. Craig Culver, deputy game warden for Wicomico County, today predicted an extremely favorable quail and rabbit season opening tomorrow.

He said the release of 485 rabbits and 102 quail during the summer had augmented an abundant supply of the animals. The daily bag limit is 6 rabbits and 8 quail.

Favorite Wins Split 'Cap by Head

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 14.—Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's Polynesian, winner of the 1945 Preakness over this track, broke a string of four seconds by finally finding the winner's circle in the first half of the $5000 added Reisterstown Handicap, the mid-week feature. Carrying 122 pounds and with Jockey W. D. Wright in the saddle, Polynesian was all out to get home in front, having to wait for the developing of a three-way photo. The son of Un breakable was the winner by a head with Morris Wexler's British Buddy second and holding a like margin over Vincent Cicero's First Son. A field of five competed.

Polynesian was the favorite and paid a $4.80 mutuel. His time for the six furlongs was 1.12 3/5. A crowd of 14,000 watched.

O. S. Jennings' Kopla and H. L. Straus' New Moon, a pair in the "also ran" position at the end, forced the early pace of Polynesian. When they tired, British Buddy came up on the outside to challenge and First Son, the early trailer, moved to the inside to become a menace. Through the stretch the three battled it out with the ultimate winner refusing to give up.

The Doge Scores

With Mrs. William Helis' Greek Warrior practically left at the post, Pentagon Stable's The Doge was the winner of the second half of the Reisterstown Handicap. Jockey Herb Claggett booted The Doge to the wire a length in front of Morris Wexler's Quien Es with J. P. Holton's Jo Agnes third in the field of five.

Greek Warrior, the heavily-played favorite almost walked out of the starting gate and spotted his rivals more than a dozen lengths. Jo Agnes went to the front and opened up a long lead, followed by Quien Es, The Doge and Turbine. In the stretch both The Doge and Quien Es rallied and Jo Agnes quit. In the final drive, The Doge had the most courage.

The winner paid $9 and was clocked in 1.13 1-5 for the six furlongs.

The daily double on Duzit and New Challenge paid $19.

Va. Sharpens Pass Defense For Sailors

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 14 (AP). Judging by Virginia's first six games, the Cavaliers' three remaining opponents might just as well concentrate on their ground attack, for the unbeaten and untied Virginians have piled up more yardage by intercepting passes than their rivals have been able to gain via the aerial route.

This is an old specialty for Frank Murray's alert ball hawks who are leading the nation's major collegiate football teams for the second straight year in the art of pass defense.

While continuing to work on their aerial boomerang weapon in preparation for their home finale Saturday against the Oceana Naval Air Station, the Cavaliers are looking ahead to their two climax contests against Maryland in Washington's Griffith Stadium on November 24, and North Carolina in Chapel Hill on December 1.

In winning from Coast Guard, North Carolina State, Virginia Military, Virginia Tech, West Virginia and Richmond, the Virginians have permitted only 15 forward passes to be completed against them for a total gain of 135 yards while Virginia backs and linemen have made seven forward pass interceptions for returns of 189 yards.

In yielding an average of only 22.5 yards per game through the air the Cavaliers have put up a tighter aerial defense than last season when their 28.7 yards per game average was the best of any of the Nation's major football teams according to published statistics.

In 1944 the Cavaliers intercepted 15 passes against nine rivals, but their 207 yards made on returns was slightly under the 259 yards gained against them through the air.

Virginia has had only two touchdowns scored against it by forward passes this fall, and the Cavaliers have counted once on an interception return. Co-Capt. Hank Walker, now in the Navy, made a 60-yard scoring return against Coast Guard.

Plans for Moving Course Approved

Plans for the transplanting of the Argyle Country Club to a 150-acre strip of land in Argyle, Md., were approved by members of the club at a meeting yesterday.

Under the direction of a committee, headed by W. L. McDaniel, an 18-hole golf course will be erected on the new site for use sometime in the late spring or early summer. The club has sold its former land and is now operating as the Argyle Land Co., Inc. Former members of the club have been invited to participate in the new project.

NOT ENOUGH CARS FOR ARMY-NAVY GAME TRAVEL

Philadelphia, Saturday, December 1

Moreover, heavy weekend travel on regular trains leaves little room for football fans

Before the war it was our custom to provide special trains—plenty of seats—plenty of parlor cars—plenty of dining cars—from Washington and Baltimore direct to the stadium at Philadelphia for the annual Army-Navy football classic.

This year, that is just not possible. The equipment necessary for so large a movement is still not available—it is engaged in the important job of demobilization.

Regular trains between Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia cannot begin to accommodate both the normally heavy weekend travel and football ticket holders. Therefore, if you plan to go to the game—and return—by train, you probably will have to stand or even have difficulty boarding train.

We sincerely regret that it is necessary to convey this news, but the blunt fact is that demobilization still "tops" a football game, even when it's Army vs. Navy.

Divorced Man Who Habitually Neglected Wife And Son, Both Before and After Separation, Now Wants Boy's Friendship; Mother Worries

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a divorcee with a son, 13. My separation and divorce are of nine years' duration, the result of my husband's general instability and neglect of his son and me. I was granted full custody of the boy and during these years I have almost entirely supported him and myself.

His father, living in another city, failed to send money regularly and I could not force him, because letters were of no avail and had I employed an attorney to collect, his fees would have absorbed the small amount at stake. Since he entered the Army two years ago, however, I have regularly received an allotment for the boy. Yet I hesitate to give him full credit for this, as he knew I could have filed for it and got it without any trouble.

Thinks Father
Bad Influence

IN THE divorce settlement I granted him permission to see the child. But prior to his entering the Army, it had been two years since he had made any effort to see his son, and for their last visit it was necessary for me to let the boy travel to see him. I have never prejudiced the child against him, and since I have not remarried he has kept a loyal attitude toward his father, as he was too small to understand his neglect for us in former years.

His father is being released from the Army soon and I will allow the boy to visit him for a short period. I am willing to permit such visits, of short duration, at my discretion, but I feel that his father would not be a good influence for visits of long duration. However, his father is not in accord with that proposition. I would like to know if my attitude is correct and how to handle the situation; what to say to the boy and to his father. My primary concern is for the well being and emotional stability of my son. P. R.

Generous Air
Good Medicine

DEAR P. R.: The child of divorce, like the child whose parents are durably wed, is profoundly (if subtly) affected for better or worse by those parents' attitude towards each other. And the child whose parents, even when divorced, signify respect and regard for each other is lastingly benefited thereby.

Thus, I think it probable you can do more for your son's psychological well being—upon which his future good adjustment to society depends—by reacting amiably to his father's war-born flush of interest in him, than you possibly could by straining anxiously against it, in thought, word or deed.

There is diplomatic value for you, as well as psychological profit to the lad, in a magnanimous attitude toward suggestions of frequent or prolonged visits. Because if the father has an ingrained distaste for responsible behavior, and if he finds his son's society freely accessible in conditions which thrust the burden of care on him and make him answerable for the boy's welfare, I daresay he will ration the visits soon enough, of his own accord.

Every Boy Needs
Some Fathering

Whatever the father's shortcomings, you have been wise to refrain from weighting the boy's spirit with knowledge of them. Because, after all, he is the father, and had the boy been required to think ill of him during formative years, his own self-esteem would have suffered proportionately—without his recognizing the occasion or nature of his inner distress, which inevitably would lead to self-distrust and emotional instability.

By now, at 13, the boy's character mold is pretty well set. And if you find him in all ways reliable, as well as open hearted, I think you can trust him to size up his father accurately, on closer inspection. If you let him come to his own conclusions, and he discovers that your silence was charitable, he will tremendously appreciate the fact and honor you for it, and feel a thousand times more loyal to you in consequence.

One last word: If the father is just an average weakling, not a calloused reprobate leading a sordid life in shameless company, some camaraderie with his son would be more desirable for the boy than no man's-world ties at all. Any psychiatrist will tell you it is a rarity when an only son of a widowed, jealously devoted mother achieves emotional stability for later years. Even a rough element of affectionately interested father-influencing in the teens is better than none at all. M. H.

Walkers Motor To Wisconsin For Honeymoon

Motoring to New York and Wisconsin are Mr. and Mrs. Leo Joseph Walker, who were married recently in St. Francis Xavier Church with the Rev. F. Echle officiating. Mrs. Walker is the former Miss Mary Florence Packett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Packett, Ferrell, Va. The home of Mr. Walker is Prairie du Chien, Wis.

A tiara of seed pearls held the bride's finger-tip veil of illusion and her gown was of white satin and marquisette. She carried a white prayer book and orchid. Mr. Packett gave his daughter in marriage.

Pale pink satin and matching Juliet cap of marquisette with veil costumed Miss Catherine Jenkins, maid of honor. Miss Katherine McGuiggan attended as bridesmaid in ice blue satin, fashioned in a manner similar to that of the maid of honor. Both carried old-fashioned bouquets.

Best man was Michael Curran, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Ushers were Maj. Peter H. Firsht and Capt. Frank M. Chedester, both of the Engineer Corps.

Mr. Walker was discharged from the Army recently after 30 months of overseas duty with the Engineer Corps.

When the Walkers return from their honeymoon they will live at 5130 11th rd. South, Arlington, Va.

AAUW Backs Plan to Keep Permanent Wac

By Genevieve Reynolds

In line with its policy of encouraging "women's fullest participation in all social, economic and political life," the American Association of University Women this week gave indorsement to establishment of the Wac as a permanent component of the United States Army. The association also approved legislation to make peacetime use of the women in the Naval Reserve.

Club Notes

Through its national legislative committee, the AAUW further recommended legislation to provide permanent commissioned rank for Navy nurses; to authorize the permanent commissioning of women medical officers, physical and occupational therapists, as well as dietitians in both the Army and Navy; to provide for Reserve officers training for women on a basis comparable to that of male personnel.

The committee further voted that AAUW take action to secure equal treatment of women with men in all phases of Social Security legislation and to support the proposed Social Security Act amendment of 1945 that would provide grants and loans to the States for construction of health facilities.

Approval also has been given to the proposed general housing bill to establish a national housing policy and provide for its execution. Further AAUW support has been pledged to a bill to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act that would raise the minimum wage from 40 to 65 cents an hour, extend coverage of the act and prohibit oppressive child labor.

Fashion Group's Luncheon

Many of the city's feminine club leaders showed up at the Washington Fashion Group's luncheon yesterday honoring Mrs. Harry S. Truman. Some of them vied with New York stylists in eye-catching hats. Marjorie Webster, past president, D. C. Business and Professional Women's Clubs, created a stir with her stove-pipe shaped all-sequin hat in blue, green and cerise. Marjorie Wood, vice president, Theta Sigma Phi, appeared in a black pill box with perky black coque feathers. Mrs. Charles Tillett, vice chairman, Democratic National Committee, wore a small black hat with a stunning wine-colored suit.

There were plumes, feathers and flowers galore. Even Mrs. James Helm, White House social secretary, was out in a becoming brown hat trimmed with ostrich plumes. But we'll let the fashion editor do justice to the other distinguished guests' outfits.

Hunting Season Provokes Search For Game Cooking Instructions

The season is open for game shooting, so many Washingtonians are shouldering guns and stalking through woods to get their bag limit. Evidently the bagging has been successful for I have received calls from both women and men asking how to cook a brace of ducks, pheasants or quail.

Any woman who wants to stay in the good graces of a hunter had better be pretty sure of her cookery of his kill. Bad cookery of game will be sure to bring out hidden temper of a sportsman.

It's to be hoped that the hunter will effect the depluming and make ready the bird for the oven or pot. But if he doesn't consider such his responsibility, the "little woman" shouldn't get panicky, for there are directions galore for plucking, cleaning and cooking game.

Out of my mail bag recently came a little 47-page booklet, "How to Dress, Ship and Cook Wild Game," published by the Remington Arms Co. of Bridgeport, Conn. Not only does it tell how to prepare game for cookery, but also gives fine recipes and also tips on how to freeze the game and make it ready for shipping. The recipes given today have been taken from this booklet.

My first call came from a man who wanted me to tell him how to tell his wife the way to cook a brace of ducks. This is the recipe complete with orange sauce to serve with the roast duck:

ROAST WILD DUCK

Dress, clean and wipe dry the duck. Stuff with sliced apple or whole peeled onion. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, cover breast with two very thin slices of fat salt pork and truss. Arrange bird in roasting pan and bake in very hot oven for 15 to 30 minutes, according to size of bird and the degree of doneness preferred. Baste every 5 minutes with fat in pan. Remove apple or onion and serve with cold orange sauce.

Cold Orange Sauce—Put 6 tablespoons currant jelly, 3 tablespoons sugar, grated rind of 2 oranges in a bowl and beat well. Add 2 tablespoons orange juice, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon salt and a dash of cayenne. Still until blended thoroughly.

A woman called to say that she must cook pheasant for a guest dinner and she didn't have the slightest idea how to proceed. This was the recipe taken from the booklet for cooking roast pheasant and bread sauce:

ROAST PHEASANT

Clean pheasant. Place in pan and pour 1 quart boiling water over it and into cavity. Place 1 cup chopped celery and 1 chopped onion, or favorite dressing in bird but do not sew up or truss. Rub with salt and pepper, then place in roasting pan with bacon. Add 1 cup of water for basting and roast in moderate oven 350 degrees for 2 hours or until tender.

Since pheasant has a tendency toward dryness, melted butter may be used for basting instead of water.

Bread Sauce.—Into a double boiler place 2 cups milk, 1 onion stuck with 6 cloves and scald for 30 minutes. Remove onion and add ½ cup teaspoon salt, a few grains of cayenne pepper and 2 tablespoons butter. Brown ½ cup coarse stale bread crumbs in 1 tablespoon butter and sprinkle on sauce.

Some hunters consider the wild turkey the most delicious of all birds. Once the bird is cleaned it is easy to roast. These are the directions from the booklet:

ROAST WILD TURKEY

Wipe turkey clean with a damp cloth. Make a stuffing of 3 cupsful of chestnuts, cook until very tender and then put through collander. Add 3 tablespoons butter, salt and pepper to taste and a cupful of cracker crumbs. Moisten to desired consistency with sweet cream. If more dressing is required, make up in same proportion. Stuff and truss bird. Roast in hot oven, 450 degrees for about 2 hours, basting frequently.

Timid Actions Not Normal In Small Child

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

It is understandable that any event outside the ordinary will be exciting to children. Sometimes it may even be frightening to the timid child, but the thrills overcome the fright and children consent to take part in recitals, weddings, parades, etc., which an adult would tend to shun.

When a child enjoys none of these things and clings to the parent one has to try to imagine what has upset this natural desire for companionship and this interest in new adventures.

No Wedding for Her

Mrs. J. F. says her five-year-old refused to take part in a wedding ceremony even after she had been provided with an expensive gown to wear as ring-bearer.

"She accepted, then refused to be a flower girl in a Memorial Day parade. She would not let loose of me when I took her to a party of only four children and I had to bring her home.

"Her daddy took her and her little sister for a walk and once away from the house she said, 'Poor Mommy is all alone.' He offered to take her uptown with him and she did not want to go but did go and complimented herself when she got back that she hadn't been afraid and would do it again.

"I try to send her on errands, I praise her and ignore her actions. She won't stay at home with a woman sitter and cries and screams until we have to stay with her."

Have You Threatened

One has to dig deep to discover what has made her so timid. Have you ever threatened to leave home if she wasn't a better girl? Mothers do this. Then the child becomes so fearful that you will disappear, some day, that she has to stay on guard at home or be near you all of the time.

Have you ever, in any quarrel with your husband, threatened to divorce him? The sensitive child would be enormously upset by this suggestion.

The helpful course is to be critical of your own behavior which might be shaking her security. Have her friends in the home so she gets used to other children in familiar surroundings. Stay with her for a time when you take her into strange places. She'll outgrow her fear and timidity.

Our leaflet, "The Timid Child," may be had as further aid with this problem. It may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with this request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

New D.C. Credit Firm Files Two Stock Offerings

By S. Oliver Goodman

A new Washington commercial banking firm, headed by Charles Delmar, has registered a proposed stock offering with the Securities and Exchange Commission, it was learned yesterday.

Manufacturers Credit Corp. is the name of the firm and offices have been leased in the 1700 block of H st. nw. The SEC revealed that the company, incorporated June 28, 1945, has not engaged in any business operations to date.

The registration statement shows that Manufacturers Credit proposes to issue 40,000 shares of $25 per value 6 per cent preferred stock and 40,000 shares of $1 par value common stock.

The stock would be offered to the public in units of one share of each stock at $30 a unit. Underwriters are headed by Tellier & Co., New York, and commission was reported as $4 a unit. Net proceeds, estimated at $1,040,000, will be added to general company funds.

Delmar, prominent in Maryland Republican affairs, was an investment banker with offices in Baltimore and Washington. Associated with him in the new enterprise is William A. Monroe, vice president and general manager, and F. R. Vernon-Williams, secretary and treasurer.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

Joins Auchincloss Firm

Willard F. West, jr., former president of the Washington Junior Board of Commerce, has become associated with the investment house of Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath, it was announced last night. A native of Washington, West is on terminal leave as a lieutenant colonel in the Army Air Forces. He is a graduate of Western High School, Blair Academy and Princeton University. Prior to serving in the Air Forces for nearly four years, he was associated with Ferris, Exnicios & Co., Inc., as a vice president.

Duval Rejoins Riggs Bank

Edward Duvall 3d, on terminal leave as a lieutenant commander in the Navy, yesterday was appointed assistant manager of the Park Road Branch of Riggs National Bank. He will assume his new duties on December 1.

Duvall entered Riggs' service in 1933 following his graduation from Central High School. He served in various departments at the main office until April, 1942, when he left to accept a commission as a reserve officer.

TWA Net Off in Period

Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., yesterday reported for the first three quarters net income of $1,660,072, or $1.69 a share, compared with $2,036,973, or $2.09 a share, for the same period in 1944.

The report said net for 1945 is after nonrecurring charges of $779,693 resulting from the sale of nonoperating property and issuance of 9029 shares of capital stock to employes under the company's stock purchase plan.

It added that 1945 figures are based on payment for airmail of 45 cents per ton mile compared with 60 cents last year which caused a reduction of $1,851,000 in TWA's mail revenues for the nine-month period.

Warmee Returns to Pontiac

Paul R. Warmee, former Pontiac assistant zone manager in Washington, has been appointed advertising and sales promotion manager of Pontiac Motor Division of General Motors, it was announced yesterday by D. U. Bathrick, general sales manager.

Warmee is on terminal leave as a lieutenant commander in the Navy. In 1938 he served in the Washington area and at the time he entered the Navy was at the home office as sales promotion manager. The combined advertising and sales promotion position is newly created.

Pepco Sales Hold Firm

Potomac Electric Power Co. yesterday reported October sales of 116,722,415 bilowatt hours, a gain of 0.82 per cent over the same month last year. Although street and transit consumption of electrical energy declined during the month, a gain of 1.48 per cent in other sales was recorded.

Earnings Statements

International Nickel Co. of Canada, Ltd., and subsidiaries report for nine months ended September 30 net profit of $18,977,565, equal to $1.20 a common share compared with $20,022,058 or $1.27 a common share in the corresponding period a year ago.

Western Union Telegraph Co. reports for nine months ended September 30 net income from operations before extraordinary adjustment totaled $5,656,528, equal to $4.59 a Class A share and $3.09 a Class B share, compared with $5,421,967, or $4.35 a Class A share and $2.85 a Class B share, for the corresponding period last year

Ohio Oil Co. and subsidiaries report for nine months ended September 30 net profit of $11,464,993, equal to $1.75 a common share, compared with $11,962,277, or $1.82 a comman share, for the corresponding 1944 period.

International Paper Co. reports for nine months to September 30 net profit of $6,221,476, compared with $6,548,626 in the 1944 period. Earnings in the latest period do not reflect a nonoperating and nonrecurring profit of $1,503,631 realized from the sale of properties and investments.
